2018 World Cup season is coming very close, this is a great sporting event around the world and received the attention of millions of fans' hearts. For king sports enthusiasts, a TV with good image quality will help you get the most vivid moments with family and friends. So what factors determine the quality of the TV screen, the article below Network Administrator will suggest you a criterion when choosing a screen to watch football World Cup season.

Image quality

Usually we like to hang out with friends and family to watch our favorite sports, especially football. When watching many people, a large and clear TV screen will make everything more perfect. However, to get the best frames, you should choose high-resolution TV screens, wide viewing angles and screen sizes that are suitable for your room, which will help all People can see the sharpest images even when sitting in any position.

According to the organization's calculation of international audiovisual standards - THX, the optimum viewing distance of the TV is calculated by TV diagonal length: 0.84 . For spaces that are not too wide, the distance from the viewing position to the TV is fixed, the size of the TV will determine the viewer's perspective. Theoretically, the bigger the TV will bring the experience of watching football with more and more excited people.

Next is the scanning frequency (the number of frames the viewer sees in 1 second), measured in Hz, for example, 100Hz has 100 frames per second. So, large-screen TV screens will give you a smoother feel.

In addition, brightness, color, depth between dark areas are also the criteria you need to consider when considering the TV screen. If your pocket money is noticeable, pay attention to the new generation TVs, its screen is equipped with LED backlight panels to make the image more vivid, clear, by adjusting the brightness of each LED light behind the screen. form.

Sound quality

It will be missing if you ignore the sound quality when choosing to buy a TV. When watching a few people, the TV's speakers are enough to transmit the fire of the match, but when gathering a whole house or group of friends, using more speakers will make the atmosphere more exciting. If you are interested in the audio system of the TV in addition to the specifications of the built-in speaker, you should pay attention to both the connection and expansion ports to be able to attach additional speakers when needed.

During the World Cup season, or other big leagues, TV shops often pull more customers with gifts, keep in mind if any TV is included.

Software ecosystem

We buy TV not only for the upcoming World Cup season but also for the needs of watching other domestic and international matches. Therefore, it is very useful to have Smart TV with software ecosystem support, there are many applications that support watching football with extremely good image and sound quality, from free to charged. Apart from football, you can take advantage of watching movies, listening to music, Internet videos, even singing karaoke when big tournaments haven't started yet, right?
