The error, this happens every day, every hour, as long as someone finds out (maybe a user, maybe an author, maybe a vandal - hacker), recently, a user He said he found Instagram service existed with a serious security error stemming from registration, leading to the possibility of being controlled by someone else without knowing it.

The report notes that a boyfriend named Michael Wagner, 27, of San Francisco, USA, unknowingly controlled another person's Instagram account when he logged in with Facebook. Back to this point, he has created a Instagram account for quite a long time, and recently had the need to use it, but he forgot the username or password (and), did not remember signing up by email to reset the password.

Being confused, I saw the Register With Facebook line, he clicked on it, strangely replacing the Instagram account opened with countless images, comments, and hundreds of followers (follow), and this is the account of one 1 high school girl.

The Mashable news page says this girl used Wagner's email when signing up for Instagram, maybe by mistakenly typing in an email address, or typing because Instagram didn't ask for it (encouraging only users to confirm email (verify the email) when registering, so this girl's account has important information when registering is Mr. Wagner's email, from which he can log in automatically to Instagram from Facebook that she is not good at. know, even if you change your password.

Of course, this serious issue has been reported by Wagner to Instagram and the company is working hard to fix this, but we don't have to worry about this if we are careful when registering and performing email validation. yourself, right?
