The leading mobile phone brands always exist many fake versions, sometimes counterfeit goods are made so good that you can hardly distinguish them. The following article will give you some tips to distinguish between genuine mobile devices and counterfeit goods.

1. Check product packaging

Manufacturers of counterfeit goods tend to ignore the quality of product packaging while genuine goods are often deeply cared by manufacturers from the smallest details, including the packaging process. Products.

Look closely at the product packaging, pay attention to the print quality on the packaging, the font must be clear, readable and consistent. No area is loose or overlapped. Genuine manufacturers always adjust their equipment so that it is difficult to be damaged by the shipping process. Even the seams and corners of the packaging do not suffer from any defects.

2. See the instruction manual

The instruction manual is almost the passport of every device. All important information about the device will be displayed in it according to the language of the country of manufacture. If it is written in a different language, it is likely that the device is only contraband or counterfeit.

3. Pay attention to the material

Any material, whether plastic, rubber or aluminum, is of poor quality or high quality. But brand-name products often don't intend to save costs on materials. The plastic covering is usually smooth, without separating borders or other flawed details. If you notice, you may notice that imitation devices or accessories often use plastic material with dull and rough marks on the surface.

4. Look at the brand font or logo printed on the device surface

Logo is the face of any brand, so they will definitely receive the attention of the manufacturer so it is difficult for a famous brand logo to be blurred despite being used later. many years.

All fonts and icons on the device must be smooth, easy to read, accurate and durable. In some cases counterfeit goods do not even have a brand name on the packaging or if it is, it is also wrong at some point.

5. Check the charging tubers

Genuine chargers of branded products often have to be adapted to each common socket type of each area.

The genuine charger will not have the seams between each part of the jack and the colors of those parts must be the same, the pins will also have two separating edges. Remember, the manufacturer will always put the safety of the user first, which is why the metal charger of the connector on the charging bulb will always fit the plastic to optimize the way Power of the product.

6. Carefully observe the charger cord and jack on the charging cord

Quality of charger cord will be an obvious sign for fake products. For genuine charger cord, the jack will attach firmly to the plastic part and when plugged into the device will fit perfectly, while the plug of the charger cord is often loose and the edges are also encountered many errors.

Also you need to pay attention to the quality of the conductive plastic and the logo above it. The quality of the cord must be flexible, the lightness on the symbol must be equal and difficult to erase.
