2. Hide search information on Facebook

Others can search you through your account name, phone number or email address. And if you don't want outsiders to find your personal Facebook account through that information, it's possible to hide it altogether.

Step 1:

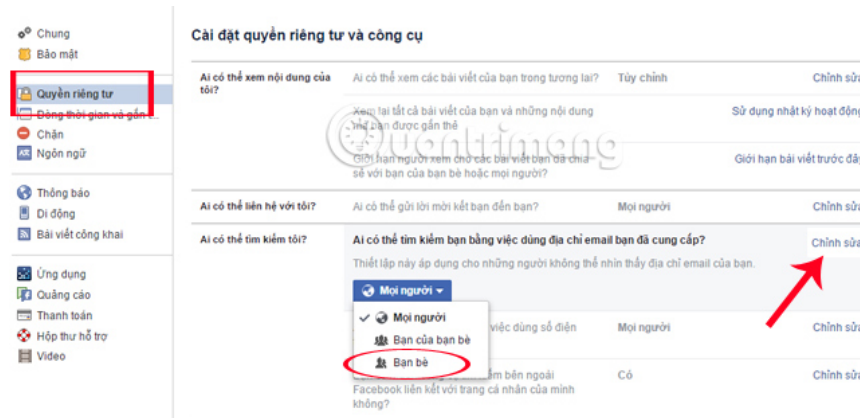

First of all, you need to log in to your personal Facebook account. At the main interface, click on the arrow icon and select Settings .

Step 2:

In the left menu, click on Private rights . At the right interface, we will see 3 items to adjust: Who can see my content ?, Who can contact me? and Who can search for me?

We click on Edit in Who can search for me? About Friends mode. You do the same with other items.

3. Adjust tag information on Facebook

Normally, Facebook will leave the free account tag mode, anyone can tag your name into the post. And of course, no one will enjoy it when there are irrelevant advertisements on the wall. Therefore, we can adjust the tagging mode of posts on Facebook.

Step 1:

Also at the General Setup interface for the Facebook account, we click on the Timeline item and add the tag to the left.

Step 2:

Look to the right, Who can add content to my timeline? There will be two small parts for us to adjust. Who can post to my timeline, switch to Friends mode so that outsiders do not tag you.

Approve the posts that friends tagged you before the article appears on your timeline? Leave it on so that we can control which tags appear on Facebook timeline.

We can also adjust the mode with two other items, Who can see the content on my timeline? and How do I manage people tags to add and suggest tagging? when clicking the Edit button.

4. Turn off location on Facebook

Regularly using Facebook, but very few people noticed that their position was located underground. In fact, location data is a very sensitive information. With the location and location data, the person who knows this information can know the places you usually go to, the home address and the workplace every day. This is an extremely valuable source of information for advertisers. However, it has a terrible danger for the individual user. No one dares to be sure this information can be exploited unexpectedly. Therefore, the best way is to stop collecting that information from Facebook to protect your privacy.

For iPhone devices, go to Settings> Security> Select to Location Services . Then, disable this feature with Facebook and 3rd party applications that you feel are not safe.

For Android devices, go to Settings> Applications> Facebook . Then, scroll down to the Settings app, go to the Permissions section and turn off the location feature of this social network.

5. Delete problematic 3rd party applications

You may not know, Facebook is a platform for operating applications. Through access to games, links and a myriad of other forms, you have inadvertently allowed applications to access your Facebook database. This is also a huge threat when no one knows what developers will do with that data.

To protect your personal information, go to the Settings section of Facebook (Apply on both web and mobile). Then, select the Application section .

Now, a series of third-party applications that you've ever allowed to access your Facebook database will appear, your task is to review them one at a time and remove the unfamiliar names. or make you feel suspicious.

6. Limit viewers

Facebook offers a default feature that allows anyone to follow their posts, but if you don't want some friends to access private posts, you can still reset it. This feature to limit viewers.

By controlling the number of people who access to the posted content more carefully, you will protect your privacy and be safer on social networks. Specifically, this option appears directly below the post section, click on the triangle icon as shown below and then set it to allow those who will see your post content.

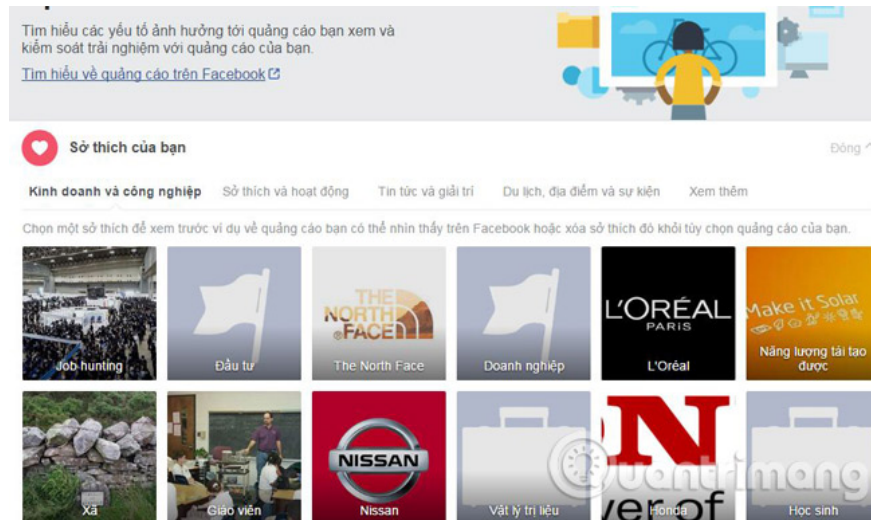

7. Advertising restriction settings

The truth is that Facebook must make a profit from businesses that want to buy your data to advertise their products. Although you cannot turn off all ads on Facebook, Facebook still grants you the right to remove the 'junk' ads with the right to restrict the provision of personal information to advertising companies accessible.

To avoid advertising information on Facebook, go to the Settings section on Facebook > Select Ads.

Your Ads Preferences screen will appear. Now, you can choose whether or not to allow Facebook to advertise based on your interests and interests

So you have hidden your personal information on your Facebook account already. Besides, we can also manage tagging our account names into posts, or not displaying email addresses and phone numbers with strangers so that they can find their Facebook account.
