

Instructions to disable notification preview feature on iOS 11

The iPhone will be no different than a brick when you don't show notifications about your apps or utilities. However, there are applications that we do not need to preview the notification or because do not want someone to see them, how to do? Previously, you could only turn off previews for applications like Mail, Messages and Photos, but with iOS 11, you can now disable this preview for all apps on the device. mine.

iPhone will be no different from "brick" when not displaying notifications about your application or utility. However, there are applications that we do not need to preview the notification or because do not want someone to see them, how to do? Previously, you could only turn off previews for applications like Mail, Messages and Photos, but with iOS 11, you can now disable this preview for all apps on the device. mine.

To do this, access the Notifications section in the Settings application . At the top of the page, you will see a new option called Show Previews . Click it, then you can change the Always option to When Unlocked or Never. If you just don't want the preview feature to display on the iPhone lock screen, select When Unlocked . The Never option will completely disable the preview mode, whether your iPhone screen is locked or has been unlocked.

Of course, just like in iOS 10, you can access each application and change the preview settings in it. The only difference is that in iOS 11, you can adjust the notification preview for all applications, including third-party apps. Therefore, if you set the Show Previews option to When Unlocked, you can change the preview feature in each specific application.

For example, after setting When Unlocked as my default option, I changed the preview feature in the News app to Always. On the lock screen, most applications only show up with Notifications content, except the News app tells me the detailed notification.

Good luck!
