

Interesting mysteries about currency in human history

Currency is one of the most important inventions in human history, making it easier to exchange goods and services.

Currency is one of the most important inventions in human history, making it easier to exchange goods and services. Before having money, people agreed to use a common commodity to exchange. The best choice is usually things that are small but are valuable and easily broken down.

1. Mysterious ancient coins print "alien" pictures
2. 7 most exotic and interesting coins in world history

Here are the few interesting facts about the currency in history

Skin, animal teeth, and pets are things used by ancient people as payment methods in transactions.

In ancient times, Chinese people used shell money (snail shells) to make purchases.

Many tribes in West Africa choose mani cigars, bracelets, brass and tin bands to exchange their purchases.

Cocoa beans or cotton are used by the Aztecs and Incas as payment methods.

Standardized metal coins, made from the natural mixture of gold and silver, first appeared in the 7th century BC, in present-day Western Turkey.

The first metal coin called coins appears in the UK. King Offa of Anglo - Saxon circulated this currency from 790 AD.

Paper money was first used in China in the 9th century, during the Tang Dynasty.

Currently, many countries and territories around the world are using different currencies. As of 2012, there are 167 different currencies used in countries around the world.

You finished reading the article "Interesting mysteries about currency in human history" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
