

Interesting secret right on Google's search engine

Well-known as a company that likes to tease users, Google always hides secrets inside its services. Recently, a secret has just been found in Google's search engine, which seems to welcome the upcoming Christmas and New Year.

Well-known as a company that likes to tease users, Google always hides secrets inside its services. Recently, a secret has just been found in Google's search engine, which seems to welcome the upcoming Christmas and New Year.

Accordingly, when you search for 'let it snow' (with or without quotes) on Google, the results will return as usual, but with the images of snowflakes falling on it. screen.

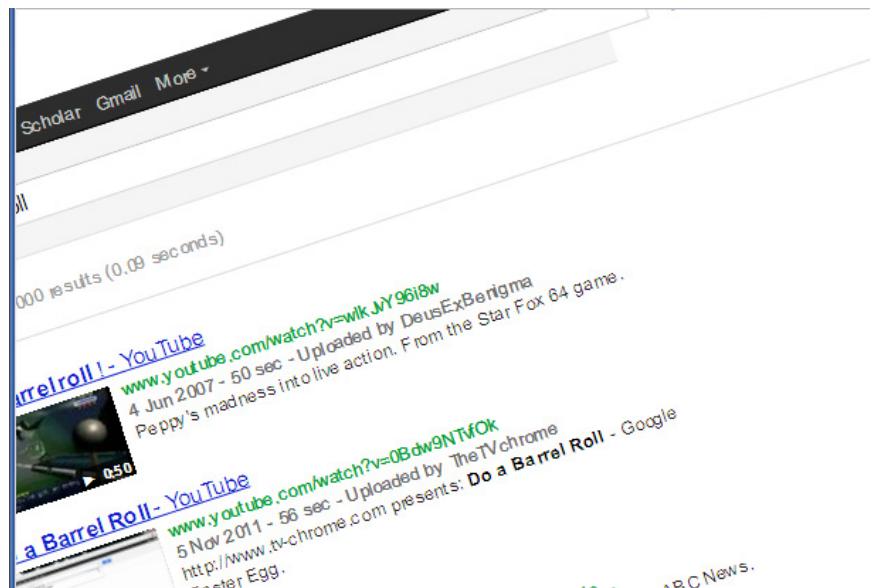

In addition to falling snowflakes, the steam effect will appear on the browser screen, creating a chilling feeling caused by snowflakes, similar to steam on the glass doors in cold winters.

Wait a moment, after the steam effect fills the screen, you will feel the browser screen become blurred. You can then left-click and move on the screen to create drawings, similar to using your finger to swipe up on the steam-filled mirror.

To discover this unique secret of Google, you need to use an HTML5-enabled web browser (like Chrome, Firefox and IE9), however, it's best to use Google's own Chrome browser.

This is not the only interesting secret on Google's search engine. Also, when you enter the phrase 'do a barrel roll' (not using double quotation marks) in the Google search box and press Enter, immediately, the search results page will appear then . rotate 1 round first when in steady state.

You finished reading the article "Interesting secret right on Google's search engine" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

