YouTube channel Nicholas Ghigo recently increased the download of videos of iOS 13 build on iPhone 11 with many new features.

YouTube channel Nicholas Ghigo recently increased the download of videos of iOS 13 build on iPhone 11 with many new features.

In this concept video, iOS 13 has the same feature as Samsung's Always On Display, the iPhone does not need to turn on the screen and still displays notifications, messages and clocks.

Users can customize applications that want to open quickly in the lock screen with iOS 13 instead of just turning on the flash and camera as the previous version.

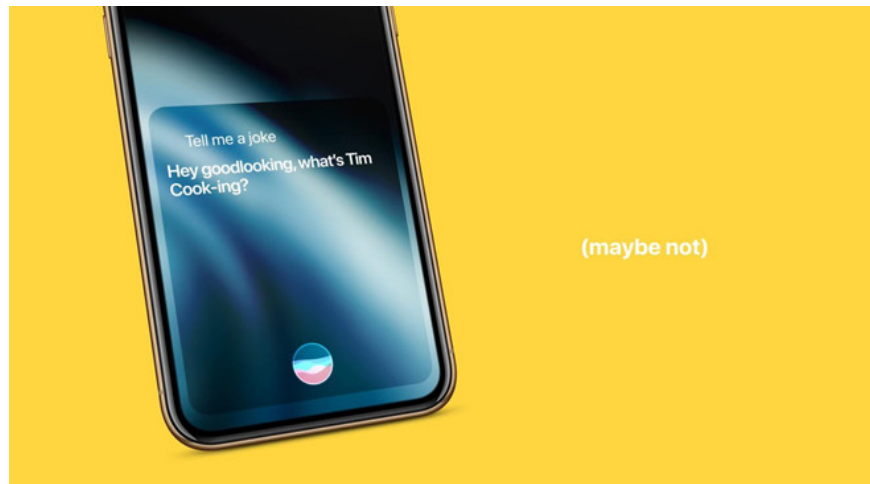

The toolbar is redesigned with a battery percentage displayed in the upper right corner, shortcuts are moved downwards to help users easily manipulate with one hand.

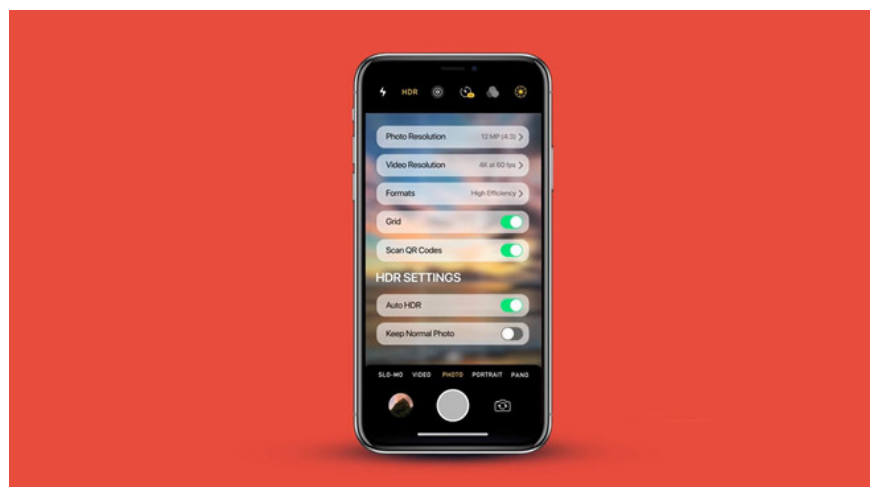

Wifi connections will be displayed as soon as the user clicks on the wifi icon from the toolbar instead of going to the settings as before.

Siri's ability to interact with users is improved, answering naturally and happily. In addition, Siri is also upgraded to limit the collection of noise in the surrounding environment.

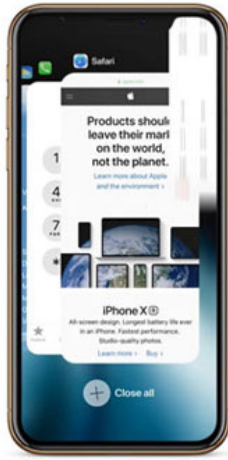

Add the installation on the camera interface on iOS 13, allowing users to easily customize the parameters.

The redesigned call interface, caller information and phone number displayed at the bottom of the screen make it easy for users to receive phone calls with one hand.

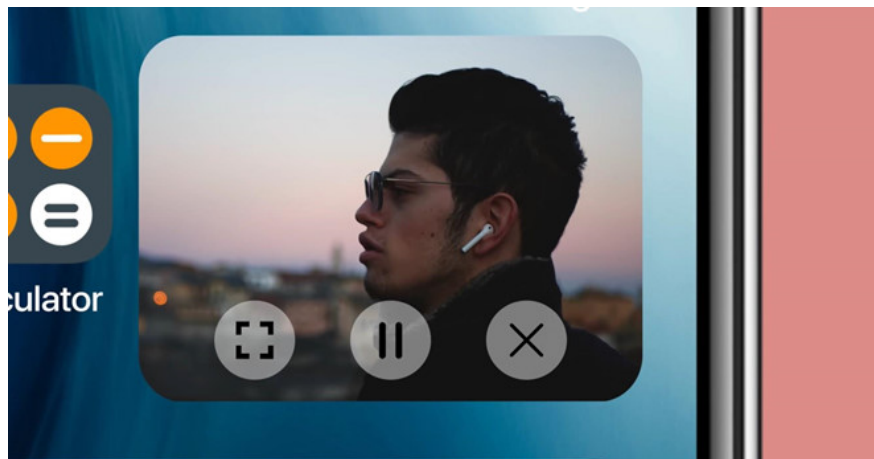

Add features to delete all tags in multitasking instead of deleting each card as before.

The volume display has a new UI that is more user-friendly.

iOS 13 will allow to run multiple application windows at once, each window can be separated or stuck to one side of the screen.

Dark Mode helps iPhone save battery power and helps users not get eyestrain when used long in night conditions.

iOS 13 on iPad allows users to switch between different accounts. This means that many users can use the same device.
