

iPhone 11 can support Apple Pencil touch pen?

Will the next iPhone generations have the help of an Apple Pencil stylus?

According to analysts at Citi Research, Apple can use Apple Pencil touch pens for all new iPhone generations. Initially Apple Pencil launched in 2015 is only used for iPad Pro, a lot of restrictions on the type of device applied. With Apple Pencil, users will quickly perform all actions on the iPad screen interface instead of using it manually as usual.

Because of its convenience, many people agree that, if Apple Pencil is used on the iPhone, it will make a huge difference. Also in this report of Citi Research has revealed more new information about the iPhone 11. Accordingly iPhone 11 will have the same screen as on iPhone XR, iPhone XS and iPhone XS Max.

The battery of the latest three models will be larger, the rear camera cluster will also be upgraded, with a resolution of up to 14mpx while the new iPhone's front camera will have a resolution of 10mpx. The legacy iPhone XS versions will be priced from 999 USD, the next-generation iPhone XR will cost 749 USD, the new version of iPhone XS Max will have a starting price of 1,099 USD.
