

Laptop 3D without glasses from Toshiba

After launching two glasses-free 3D TVs, the Japanese electronics company continues to introduce a special screen-integrated laptop that allows for three-dimensional visuals without accessories support.

After launching two glasses-free 3D TVs, the Japanese electronics company continues to introduce a special screen-integrated laptop that allows for three-dimensional visuals without accessories support.

>>> Toshiba unveiled the first 3D TV without glasses

>>> Toshiba dynabook T550 - Laptop with 3D capabilities

Users can adjust a special part on the screen to display 3D images and other locations display 2D as usual.

Toshiba's glasses without 3D glasses - Artwork. (Internet source).

Toshiba's 3D laptop is expected to be sold under the Dynabook brand, a 12-inch screen. According to experts, the price of this 3D laptop is not inferior to that of 3D TVs without glasses (from 1,500 USD or more).

Toshiba promises to launch the product next year.

You finished reading the article "Laptop 3D without glasses from Toshiba" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.