

League of Legends: Information about the new champion Zeri has been officially revealed

In order to celebrate the 2022 League of Legends season, Riot Games immediately teased information related to the latest champion named Zeri.

Recently, Riot Games has released the splash art of the newest champion to be released in the near future. Accordingly, this general will be a sniper from Zaun named Zeri. It is known that this girl will carry the nickname Spark of Zaun with an extremely mobile skill set compared to other gunner generals.

Not only that, but Riot Games also describes that Zeri will give gamers an experience similar to playing an FPS shooting game. Furthermore, Zeri was also created to help Riot Games rediscover the role of basic attacks with AD carry champions and find out if they can be changed.

According to Zeri's biography, this girl comes from a working family in the underground city of Zaun, but she is very different from the children here when Zeri already possesses the ability to interact with electricity through sensing circuits. touch yourself. Not only that, but Riot also confirmed that Zeri will have a close relationship with Ekko as they are both from Zaun.

Currently, Zeri's skill set has not been officially announced by Riot Games or set a release date. Version 12.1 is about to be released so Zeri will probably be pushed back to the release date for a few later versions but it is very close.

You finished reading the article "League of Legends: Information about the new champion Zeri has been officially revealed" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.