

Lenovo announced two latest Ultrabook models

On October 5, in Ho Chi Minh City, Lenovo announced two latest Ultrabook models, the ThinkPad X1 Carbon and T430u.

On October 5, in Ho Chi Minh City, Lenovo announced two latest Ultrabook models, the ThinkPad X1 Carbon and T430u.

These new Ultrabooks are introduced in Lenovo Technology Expo, Lenovo's largest ever event in Vietnam, demonstrating its innovations and developments.

The ThinkPad X1 Carbon supercar weighs less than 1.36kg, in a design with a 14-inch high-resolution screen. Made of carbon fiber material, it has a light weight, yet still ensures durability to be used in harsh environments.

On this occasion, Lenovo also introduced the latest member of the ultra-portable IdeaPad line with IdeaPad S400. This is a slim, light but affordable model that converges features including convenience, simplicity and high responsiveness.

Mr. Nguyen Van Thien, Director of Lenovo Vietnam believes that these machines will meet the current desire of Vietnamese entrepreneurs. This is the affirmation of Lenovo's commitment to only provide the market with the most innovative solutions.

You finished reading the article "Lenovo announced two latest Ultrabook models" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

