

Lenovo launches a laptop duo using Sandy Bridge chip

IdeaPad Y560p and Y460p equipped with the most advanced processor options are Sandy Bridge Core i7, Lenovo's RapidDrive technology and JBL speaker system.

IdeaPad Y560p and Y460p equipped with the most advanced processor options are Sandy Bridge Core i7, Lenovo's RapidDrive technology and JBL speaker system.

Lenovo Y460p and Y560p duo.

Lenovo announced the duo of new IdeaPad laptops named Y560p and Y460p. Both run Intel Core 2 processor, Sandy Bridge and new storage features.

Lenovo IdeaPad Y560p is 15.6-inch screen while IdeaPad Y460p is 14 inches. Both have a standard resolution of 16: 9. The duo has the highest processor option, the Sandy Bridge Core i7 chip, Lenovo's RapidDrive technology, which combines a maximum of 750GB hard drive and 32GB solid-state drive to speed up processing and performance. productivity of the machine. In addition, the RAM of the two machines is also up to 8GB, JBL speaker system with Dolby Home Theater audio.

IdeaPad Y560p and Y460p have two colors to choose from: gray and white metal. Both will start selling on January 11, 2011 with a starting price of $ 849 (US market).

You finished reading the article "Lenovo launches a laptop duo using Sandy Bridge chip" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

