

Lenovo launches G-series laptops at competitive prices

Lenovo has just introduced G-series notebooks into Vietnam market. This is a model with quite suitable price for users who want to switch from desktop to laptop.

Lenovo has just introduced G-series notebooks into Vietnam market. This is a model with quite suitable price for users who want to switch from desktop to laptop.

Lenovo G400 is available at Lenovo authorized stores nationwide from October 15 with a starting price of US $ 680. G410 will be available at authorized stores nationwide from October 22 with a starting price of 580 USD.

The G400 uses an Intel Pentium Dual-Core T2080 processor, while G410 uses Intel's Celeron M530 chip. The series will be available in silver and black, in which the black machine will be available in early November. Both versions have a wide-screen mirror with high definition WXGA 14.1 inch and a set of controls. Microsoft's DOS. In addition, the machine also has a One Key Recovery button (commercially registered) of Lenovo that allows users to easily recover data in case of failure.

Media and entertainment features include built-in mic, high-quality Realtek audio and Power2Go 5.5 software (limited edition) to enable users to record audio in a variety of formats.

With the launch of this attractive new price range, Lenovo can now provide the best computers for its new market segment.

Phong Hoang

You finished reading the article "Lenovo launches G-series laptops at competitive prices" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

---