

Let Facebook take the nose, don't make the fish bite

A very familiar operation on the browser address bar is almost forgotten when we flood in the era of social networking.

A very familiar operation on the browser address bar is almost forgotten when we flood in the era of social networking.

Do you want the 2018 Internet to be better? Want the electronic newspapers you like to survive? Want to stop reading fake news but instead are really valuable articles?

The solution is simple: look at the address bar of the browser you are using and use it. Or type the website you need to search here or bookmark the page again to open it later.

Before the social network swept the Internet world and provided a path for every netizen, we all typed in website addresses or used bookmarks to bookmark pages . (The browser also has the ability to auto-fill when that site has been accessed, so typing is not very difficult, or at most, it is to search on Google if you don't remember the domain correctly).

Before Facebook, people still enter addresses into the browser, use bookmarks, even RSS or subscribe to receive new news via email.

But now it is different. We read news because everyone reads, because people share on Timeline or Tweet on Twitter, or simply because it shows up on News Feed when you are surfing Facebook . Rarely do anyone read their own content.

This is how Facebook 'bait' information for users on the News Feed

Facebook is now the person who chooses to believe for you

Just one action is simply choosing the content you will read, you have control. And more:

1. Encourage sites with good content to continue to create great content.
2. Makes the news pages scare away because no one has access.
3. Help newspaper sites not try to find every way to read the reader with all kinds of tricks such as jerking, sharing on social networks .

Never before have electronic newspapers been hungry and tired of wresting like 2017. Now, hot news on Facebook will ensure high views and so everyone must find ways to be called on. This billion-user social networking application.

You want to blame anyone. For Facebook because it is too good to exploit human psychology to entice? For yourself for being seduced? For society, for government, for power agencies for doing nothing to restrain this 'demon'? Anyhow, as long as you read from Facebook, you are limited to your options.

Former Facebook president Sean Parker admitted to helping create a demon

The newspapers also did not escape. In order to survive, they must try to catch the reader with the best bait. And that, nothing else is Facebook. Do you want people to read your news? You have to participate in Facebook's game, this tank is full of fish and we have bait for you.

Get out of this spiral, no one else is you.

See more:

1. Want to disappear from the Internet, do you think erasing your social network account is done?
2. Just post comfortably, but don't pay, Facebook Page posts will not go to the News Feed!
3. Mark Zuckerberg didn't want me to use Facebook

You finished reading the article "Let Facebook take the nose, don't make the fish bite" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.