

LG's dual-screen phone is revealed

On April 5, 2018, the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) has publicly patented a phone with two monitors, two batteries and two LG headphone jacks (filed since September). / 2016).

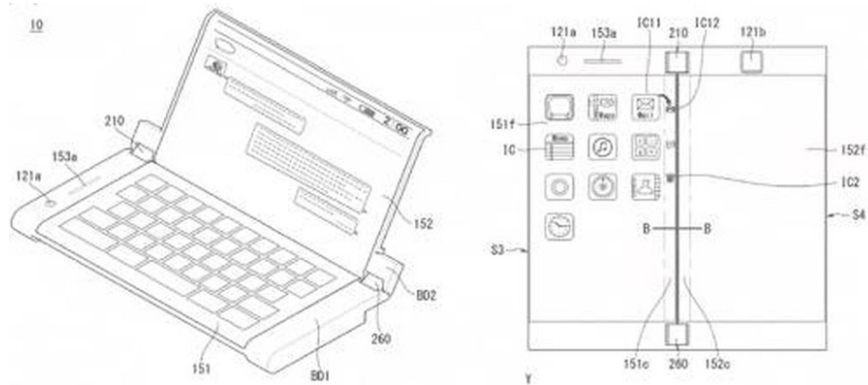

On April 5, 2018, the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) has publicly patented a phone with two monitors, two batteries and two LG headphone jacks (filed since September). / 2016).

According to the patent image submitted, the two screens of this special phone are connected via two hinges, top and bottom. This allows the two screens to fold up and combine into a large screen.

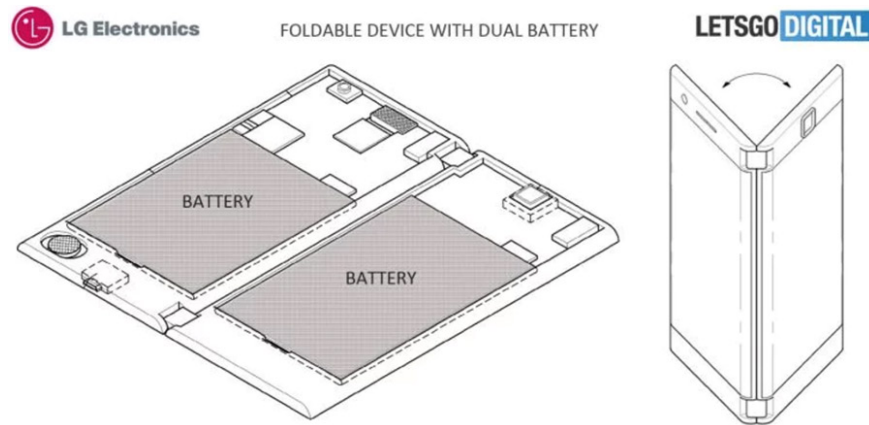

When the phone is folded, the two screens will operate independently and display the date, time, temperature, mobile wave and other notifications. The phone is designed with a curved screen and a flat screen to hide the hinge when it is folded.

When in one-screen mode, the phone can simulate like a book. When the user finishes reading this screen, the next part will be displayed on the remaining screen.

The special thing about this device is that two monitors can play simultaneously, and can play sound separately through a separate headphone jack. This allows two people to watch and listen to different videos at the same time on the same device without affecting each other.

In addition, the first screen is also integrated with a fingerprint sensor under the touch layer. Both monitors have their own digital camera and battery.

See more:

1. Katim Phone - what's the most secure phone in the world?
2. Smart device helps smartphones see through walls
3. How much electricity does the computer, phone and electrical appliances in the house burn every year?
4. The 34 best and worst phones in Nokia's calendar, which one is your spring?

You finished reading the article "LG's dual-screen phone is revealed" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.