List and strengths of servers in Cookie Run: Kingdom, List of servers available in Cookie Run: Kingdom, strengths of each server and how to choose

Cookie Run: Kingdom is a role-playing, kingdom building and fighting game, part of the popular Cookie Run series. Participating in Cookie Run: Kingdom, players will build and develop a dream Cookie Kingdom, fighting against evil dessert monsters.

Before creating an account, Cookie Run: Kingdom requires players to choose between 3 existing servers, Hollyberry, Pure Vanilla and Dark Cocoa.

There aren't any major differences between servers, regardless of server choice, the stories, missions, drop rate when spinning gacha, etc. are the same.

The main differences between the servers include: Pure Vanilla is the old server, Dark Cocoa is more recommended for new players, and Hollyberry is the middle server for both.

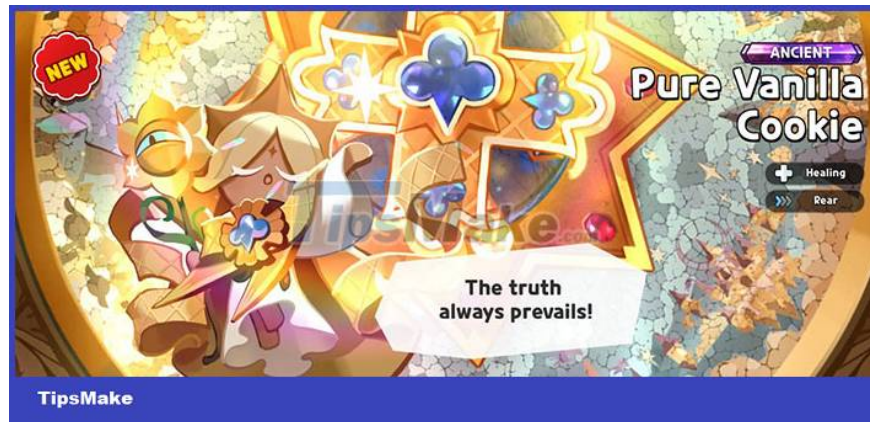

Players should note that, if you have friends playing Cookie Run: Kingdom, everyone needs to choose the same server, because it is not possible to add gamers from another server to the friends list.

For example, if friends are on Pure Vanilla server, everyone should choose Pure Vanilla to be able to make friends. When you befriend someone in the game, everyone can fight, chat together, give Prestige Points and gifts to their kingdom.

Servers available in Cookie Run: Kingdom

Pure Vanilla Server

Pure Vanilla is the original server and has been around since the game was first released in January 2021. Since it is the oldest server, it has more players and a higher number of experienced players. when compared to Hollyberry or Dark Cocoa. The high player count doesn't affect the story mode, but the ranking competitions in the game will be more competitive.

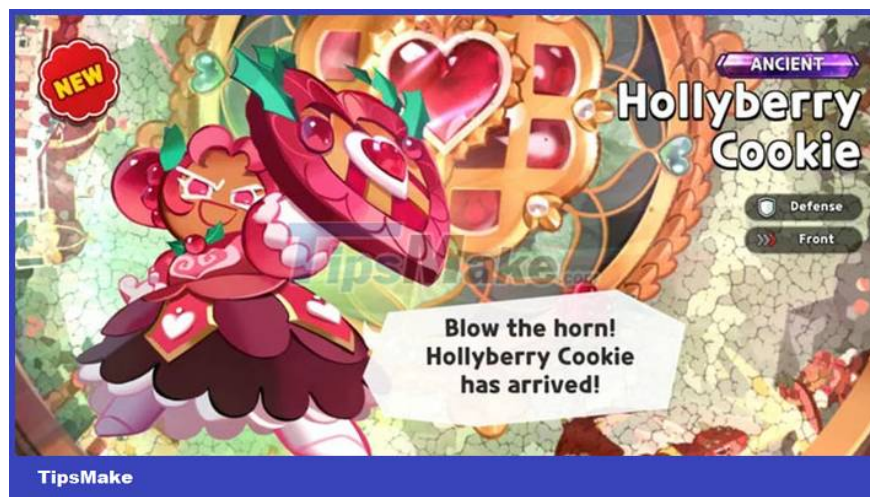

For example, in Arena mode, new players will have a hard time going up against veteran players, as the average team at Master 5 has at least 600,000 team strength.

Likewise, competing in Guild Battle, Alliance, and Golden Age of Trade is also much harder. Hollyberry and Dark Cocoa are the easier options, but if you want to challenge yourself then Pure Vanilla is the server for you!

Server Hollyberry

Often considered the more 'breathable' server, Hollyberry was released on September 3, 2021, almost 8 months after the game first launched. Therefore, this server has less players than Pure Vanilla.

A lot more accessible to new players, so if you're a beginner, the Hollyberry server would be a great choice.

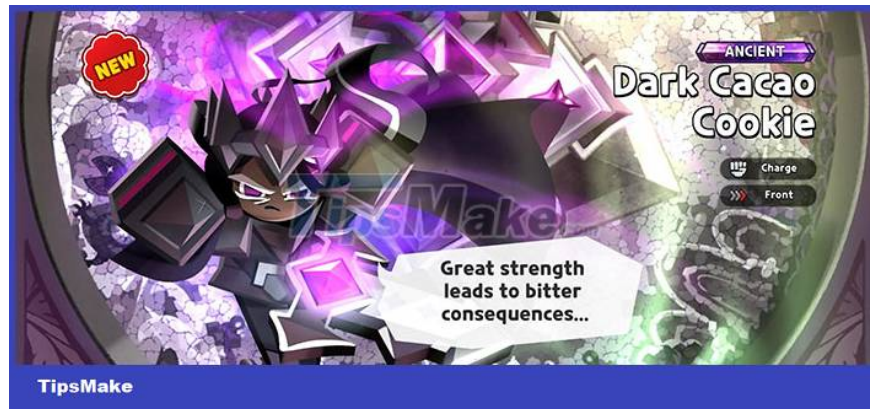

For example, in Arena mode, a player can go to Master 5 (a bonus of 15,000 crystals per season) with only 20000 team strength.

This stat is achievable after only 1 month of playing the game. Achieving a high rank in Arena is a big plus as it is one of the best sources of crystals in the game. Crystals are useful for creating gacha spins and improving stats for cookies.

Dark Cocoa Server

This is the newest of the game's 3 servers, and therefore Dark Cocoa has the fewest players. It launched on April 18, 2022, just a short time after Dark Cocoa Cookie was released.

Arena mode and other ranked competitions are now easier to play in the Hollyberry server, but this could change if the majority of new players in the future switch to Dark Cocoa. It's worth noting that if a player has friends who have played Cookie Run: Kingdom, they are more likely to be on older servers as Dark Cocoa came out a few months later than Pure Vanilla and Hollyberry.

Servers may launch in the future

There are 3 servers to choose from at the moment, but Cookie Run: Kingdom is likely to add more servers in the future if the current servers are overcrowded.

It's worth noting that these 3 servers are so far named after Ancient rarity cookies - the rarest cookies in the game.

There are 5 Ancient cookies that have been revealed in the game, so there is a high chance that Cookie Run: Kingdom will have 5 servers in the future. All 5 Ancient cookies are playable in the game, but only Pure Vanilla, Hollyberry, Dark Cocoa are actually released and can be collected from Gacha. New Ancient Cookies are usually released every 4 months.
