

MacBook Air 'postponed' shipped

Although scheduled, the new MacBook Air will be available this week, however, it may take some time for the new device to arrive.

Although scheduled, the new MacBook Air will be available this week, however, it may take some time for the new device to arrive.

MacBook Air will not be available as early as expected. Photo: Cnet.

Those who ordered the new MacBook Air with a 120 GB hard drive will receive an error message from Apple. It is expected that Apple's new ultra-thin laptop will be available this week, but it must actually arrive at the end of the month to new users.

Apple announced that it will not release another product until the end of the year. Many sources believe that the new Mac Mini will be released next year. Product timing appears to be January, at MacWorld 2009.

You finished reading the article "MacBook Air 'postponed' shipped" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.