So you should only use foundation when necessary and also understand that it is not necessary to use foundation every time you apply makeup.

3

Choose foundation according to skin color

You should remember that with time and age, your skin has changes in color and elasticity, so it is not recommended to use only one type of foundation for a long time. Surely the foundation you used 10 years ago is no longer suitable for your skin today.

When choosing foundation, you should choose the color that is closest to the skin you are "owning", this will help you stand out more when applying makeup.

Trim eyebrows

Your eyebrow "system" should be arranged in an orderly "line". This will effectively make your face much more compact, and can also see the eyebrows as an extremely impressive highlight on the face.

Concealer bars will help your skin cover wrinkles or age spots on your skin, which is the main cause of making you look older than your years.

Using a concealer bar has the advantage that if used skillfully, it will help you achieve the desired purpose of covering your face defects or vice versa, it can also have a counterproductive effect if you are careless and ignorant people.

There are 3 types of concealers: cream, stick and liquid. You need to read the instructions carefully before use and can consult with makeup experts.

Note: Should choose a concealer with the same skin tone, it will help conceal more effectively.

Skip the lip line or just blur it

Lip lines that are too thick or too bold will not create a highlight for the lips as you think because it makes you look much older, making the lip lines not inherently soft but on the contrary will become very hard. .

So you can use a matte lip liner to keep the lipstick from slipping out, or maybe it's okay not to line your lips.
