

Many Apple fans were disappointed

Apple products are favored by many fans and want to own them. However, many 'Apple' fans are now more fond of Android. So what is the reason?

Apple products are favored by many fans and want to own them. However, many 'Apple' fans are now more fond of Android. So what is the reason?

Here are the reasons why 'Apple' fans turn to Android products:

Apple's iOS operating system lacks the basic features

Apple lacks the basic features for users to use the phone. Such as the function of shrinking text so that they fit the screen and users do not have to drag the scroll bar left or right to read the paragraphs. Meanwhile, Android phone makers seem to be performing that function with the diodes and control balls.

Besides, many users also like widgets on the Android device's Home screen, such as weather widgets on HTC devices, or can easily check their bank accounts and view all deals. Recent translations without having to open an application.

Compatibility

Apple products are designed to allow compatibility only with one another and cannot be combined with other brands' products. On the other hand, the application part too, not every application you like can run on Apple devices, except for those applications Apple allows exist on the Apple Store app store.

No need to install software on your computer iPhone requires users to install iTunes on their computer and then sync iPhone with personal computer to share data, videos or contacts, etc. Furthermore, users can only sync iPhone set with Apple products. Meanwhile, Android phones don't need to install any software and just connect them to any type of computer, being able to do what you want.

Price

Apple products are still considered luxury for the majority of the global population, while Android devices are quite rich in variety from price to price. Users can choose the most popular product to high-end products that are not inferior to Apple devices.

Web support ability

Currently Apple products still do not support Flash and this means that users can only perform half of the operations compared to the computer browser. Meanwhile, Android products fully support Flash, allowing full display of a website like on a PC.

You finished reading the article "Many Apple fans were disappointed" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.