

Marvel at 12 picturesque nature pictures

You might think that the following natural photos were taken on some distant planet outside the universe, not on the Earth because it's beautiful beyond human imagination.

You might think that the following natural photos were taken on some distant planet outside the universe, not on the Earth because it's beautiful beyond human imagination.

Panoramic beauty of rocky mountains and eroded caves in Turkey's Cappadocia region from the hot air balloon.

The turquoise lake is located on the highest Flores mountain in Indonesia, always changing color periodically. After a certain period of time, the water in the lake changes from olive green to red and even brick black due to the concentration of mineral salts in the lake.

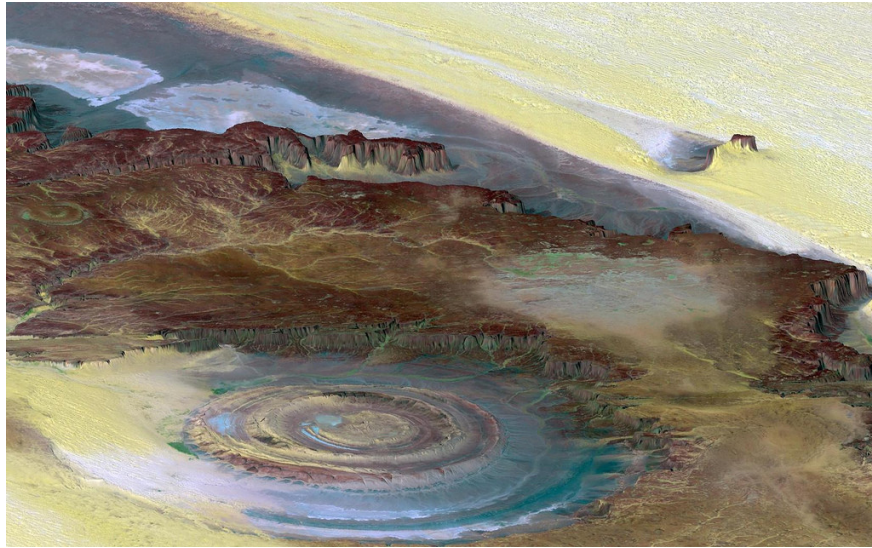

Marble cave in Chile has beautiful or mysterious patterns combined with reflections of sparkling water on the ceiling creating a beautiful effect.

Formed by rain erosion from about 5 million years ago Api mountain in Gunung Mulu National Park, Malaysia with 150 pointed rock like swords that create a majestic natural landscape.

Having gone into the work of the great Dutch artist Van Gogh, the narrow sandstone mountain range at the foot of Ky Lien hill has many brilliant colors that make the viewers overwhelmed. This mountain range is located in Zhangye Daxia National Geological Park in China.

Eye of Africa, a 30-mile-wide valley surrounded by mountains made up of geological formations near Ouadane, Mauritania.

As part of the Mendenhall Glacier glacier, Mendenhall ice caves formed by melting glaciers create a mysterious, beautiful turquoise world.

Lake Ongeim L'Tketau, Palau is the exclusive kingdom of transparent yellow jellyfish. Without any enemies in the lake, the number of jellyfish in the lake grows very fast.

Hellhole is located in the natural gas field in Derweze village, Turkmenistan, the land has about 230 volcanoes that have been burning for 40 years and is called "the door to hell".

Salar de Uyuni is the largest salt lake in Bolivia as a mirror reflecting the vast sky.

White sand dunes in Lencois Maranhenses National Park, Brazil looks like a desert.

The giant stone disk in Ireland has about 40,000 black basalt polygons stacked on top of each other to create a beautiful view like other planets. This disc rock formation was formed about 60 million years ago, was recognized as a World Natural Heritage by Unesco.

You finished reading the article "Marvel at 12 picturesque nature pictures" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.