

Marvel at the rat rat hunting pigeons in the middle of the street

Although agile and able to fly, the pigeons still have to die by assassin rats in the middle of the street.

Although agile and able to fly, the pigeons still have to die because of the "killer" rat in the middle of the street.

1. Assassin sharks ripped huge squid in death
2. The scorpion of freshwater crab war, the battle of the couples

Pigeons have looks, speed is better, it even has the ability that the mouse does not have to fly. So why do pigeons still have to die before predators lose it in all aspects?

The battle between a professional who crawls underground with a man who often flies in the sky happens on a sidewalk in New York City, USA recorded by John Freund.

In the video, ferocious rats chase after the "dove" of the dove. After repeatedly attacking the pigeon's neck and wings, the rat dragged its prey on the sidewalk. All struggle, trying to escape the predator of the dove is unsuccessful.

At the end of the war, the rats defeated the prey completely, and dragged the pigeons into the grove behind the fence.

Whether in the natural world or in a crowded city, the battle between animals is extremely harsh. They are always faced with unspeakable dangers from those that no one would have expected.
