

Masta Box: When a fidget cube is not just a toy to play with

Masta Box is the idea of combining a fidget cube with computer mouse, laser pointer, joystick and dozens of other technologies and features into one for you to play and work at the same time.

The purpose of fidget cube is to help people focus on doing better, and what's better than making it a versatile tool for office people?

This is a real idea, called the Masta Box and is currently being called for capital contribution on Kickstarter. from the last 12/6. Basically, the Masta Box has a boxy design with buttons, controllers on all six sides like other fidget cube models. However, the manufacturer has cleverly added the features for each side.

The Masta Box is a versatile tool in the shape of a fidget cube.

Specifically, one side of it acts as a wireless mouse with trackball and two left and right mouse buttons. On the other hand, there is a laser pointer used for presentations or another is a joystick to control music and video. Masta Box supports Bluetooth connectivity with Windows and Mac computers, Micro USB port for charging and MicroSD memory card slot.
