

Messenger and Facebook will soon be using the same emoji

Facebook and Messenger will soon use the same set of emoticons - that's the standard Facebook emoticon.

Facebook and Messenger will soon use the same set of emoticons - that's the standard Facebook emoticon. Messenger Emoji will be removed.

So far, Facebook and Messenger still use different emoji sets. Messenger icon set was launched in June 2016. These two emoji are a little different, the face on Facebook is a straight face, while on Messenger it's a bit tilted to the side.

Emoticon set on Messenger looks slightly sideways

According to Emojipedia, this change will be available on every platform. Messenger on Desktop and Android will use the emoji of Facebook, while iApple users use iOS emoji.

It is not clear which Facebook is going to make this new change on devices in any order. On the computer still see the old emoji but on iPhone it has been replaced with Apple emoticons.

You finished reading the article "Messenger and Facebook will soon be using the same emoji" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.