If people are excited about this new feature, then many Facebook fans have to feel sad because: Messenger does not have custom statuses. Don't worry too much because this is not a big problem. The main reason is because your Facebook and messenger have not yet updated this feature! Therefore, users only need to immediately apply the following treatment measures:

Update your Facebook and Messenger apps

As mentioned above, the reason why Facebook or Messenger does not have a custom status is because it has not been updated. Especially for those of you who have the habit of turning off automatic updates for this application. So, you just need to go to CH Play or App Store (depending on your device). After that, search and update Facebook/Messenger to the latest version (if available). Once you have completed the update process, please go back to Messenger to see if this feature is available or not!

Turn on active status for Messenger

This is also a way to enable the custom status feature on Messenger. This also means that other people on this application will know when you are online. To do this, users just need to go to the Messenger application > Click on the personal avatar (top left corner of the screen) > Continue to select Active Status > Turn on the switch in the 'show when you are active' items. ', 'Show when you work together'.

If you want to turn on active status on Facebook. Users need to access this social network, then click on the 3 lines (upper right corner of the screen) > Scroll down and select 'Settings & Privacy' > Select Settings > Find and select the item 'Activity status' > Turn on 'Show when you're active'.

Log out and log back in to Facebook

This is also a very useful tip if Messenger or Facebook doesn't have custom statuses. Please go to the Facebook application > Click on the 3 lines > Scroll down and select Log out. Next, you just need to log in to Facebook again. Check to see if the custom status feature has 'appeared' or not!
