

Microsoft announced three exciting new features that are about to appear in the new Office application

Yesterday, Microsoft just launched a new Office application for iOS and Android devices.

Based on feedback from previous beta users, Microsoft made many improvements in the first official version of the new Office application. Some of these improvements include the ability to support third party storage services such as Box, Dropbox, Google Drive, and iCloud; template support to help you create new documents, spreadsheets, and presentations; along with many improvements in overall performance.

Along with this announcement, Microsoft also "teases" 3 brand new features will soon appear on Office applications in the near future.

Turn your voice into a word

Word turns your voice into words, and uses simple voice commands and toolbars to easily apply the right punctuation format and type to suit your users' needs.
