

Microsoft integrates Skype into Office Online

Microsoft has said it has integrated Skype chat program into Office Online.

Microsoft has said it has integrated Skype chat program into Office Online.

The purpose of Microsoft is to create comfort and easier for users: users can now work while chatting with friends without having to open the Skype application. Not only that, Skype also works great in case you are working in groups and need to discuss to edit a document.

This is not the first time that Microsoft has integrated Skype into its products. Previously, the company also integrated Skype into Outlook and received good feedback from users. Microsoft advises users to link Skype ID to a Microsoft account for the best experience.

According to analysts, the trend of linking products will be continued by Microsoft in 2015. This is both a way for Microsoft to help users have better experiences, and to increase the number of users of services and software. the firm.

You finished reading the article "Microsoft integrates Skype into Office Online" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.