

Microsoft is testing a feature that allows you to search for information on the lock screen of Windows 10

Microsoft has recently introduced Windows 10, its latest operating system, to search information on the lock screen.

Microsoft has recently introduced Windows 10, its latest operating system, to search information on the lock screen. With just a few simple steps, users can use the search engine right on the lock screen instead of having to sign in to Windows.

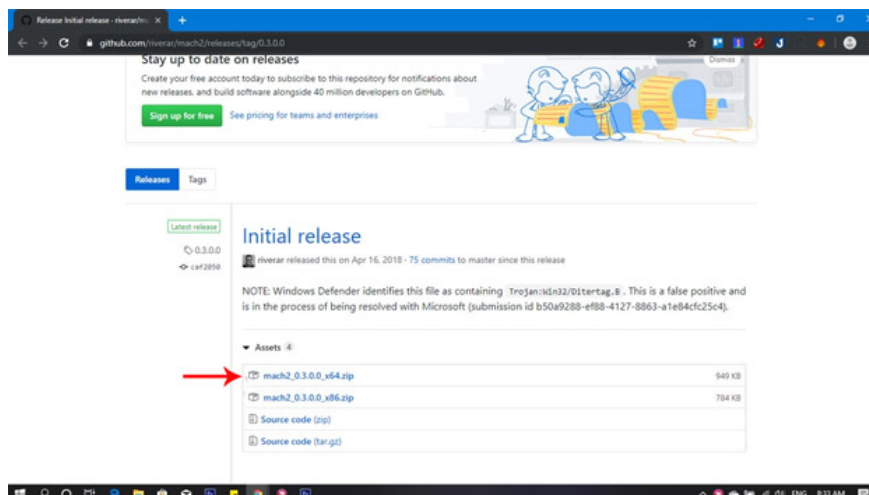

Currently, this feature is only tested by Microsoft on Windows 10 build 18932.

However, the feature that allows searching information on the lock screen of Microsoft Windows 10 can only be searched with the Bing search tool and can only be used in case the computer is locked by the Windows + key combination. L.

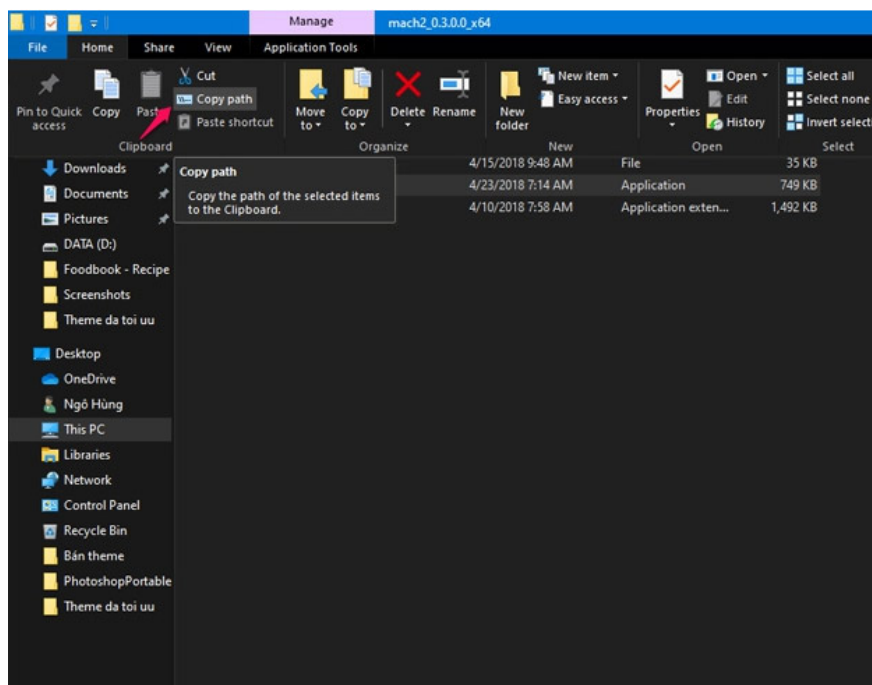

If you are using the version of Windows 10 build 18932 and want to experience this new feature, you can follow the instructions below.

Step 1: Visit the link below to download the Match2 tool. It is possible that when downloading this tool to Windows Defender will appear Trojan: Win32 / Ditertag.B existence in the download file but this is only a false recognition error. Microsoft is fixing this error.

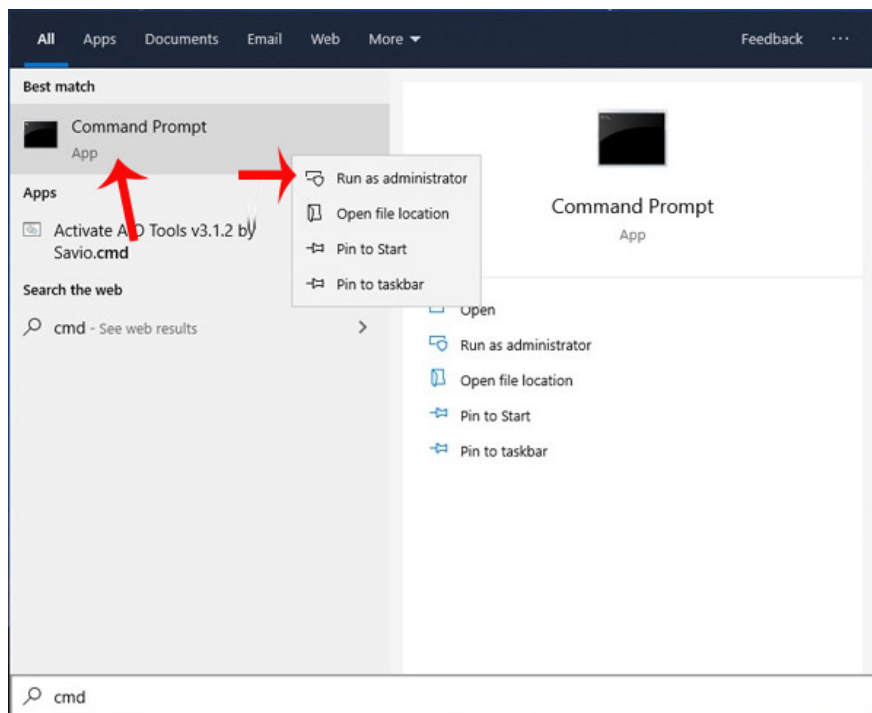

<https://github.com/riverar/mach2/releases/tag/0.3.0.0>

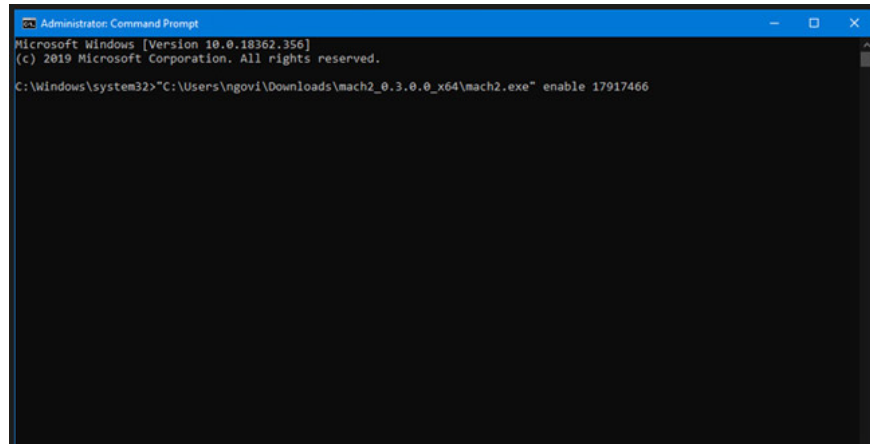

Step 2: Extract the downloaded tool -> click the file match2.exe -> click on the Home tab -> click Copy Path to copy the path.

Step 3: Open CMD with Administrator rights, you can refer to the article 'How to open and run cmd with Admin rights on Windows'.

Step 4: Enter the path that you copied in step 2, and add 'enable 17917466' on the right -> Type Enter.

```
Administrator: Command Prompt
Microsoft Windows [Version 10.0.18362.356]
(c) 2019 Microsoft Corporation. All rights reserved.

C:\Windows\system32>"C:\Users\ngovi\Downloads\mach2_0.3.0.0_x64\mach2.exe" enable 17917466
```

Step 5: Close the CMD window (Command Prompt) and restart Windows 10 is done.

1. Windows 10 will likely support automatic installation from the cloud
2. The amazing fact: Windows 10 wallpapers are completely handmade

You finished reading the article "Microsoft is testing a feature that allows you to search for information on the lock screen of Windows 10" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.