

Microsoft renovates the Redmond campus with 18 new buildings

Apple is not the only company building a monumental campus for its employees.

Apple is not the only company building a monumental campus for its employees.

But unlike Apple, Microsoft does not build a new campus but only "upgrade" its current campus in Redmond, Washington.

Accordingly, the upgrade of Redmond headquarters will consist of '18 buildings, 6.7 million square meters of repaired, refurbished work space, $ 150 million for improvement of delivery infrastructure. pine, public areas, sport area and green space '.

When completed, within 5 to 7 years, the campus will have a capacity of 47,000 Microsoft employees and the ability to expand another 8,000 people.

The campus will also be optimized for walking and cycling, while all cars will be parked underground.

Microsoft also plans to change the exterior of the campus with a 2-square-foot square containing 12,000 people, along with walking, jogging, and necessary areas for playing football, cricket and the retail area.

They have also recently built 3 green houses at Redmond headquarters to make their staff close to nature.
