

Microsoft revealed a $ 200 laptop, running Windows 10 for schools

Microsoft is battling Chromebooks with launching some new laptops for under $ 200 and some notebooks can cost less than $ 300.

Microsoft is battling Chromebooks by launching some new laptops for under $ 200 and some laptops can cost as little as $ 300. They come with Windows 10 and are pre-installed with some free software to support research and study work in schools.

Specifically, the Lenovo 100e will cost only $ 190 or a 300e, for $ 280, to support the pen. In addition, there is a $ 300 Trigeno V401 series that supports both input and touch pen, while Classmate Leap T303 laptop ($ 200) has additional Windows Hello security.

You may be skeptical about the screen resolution, RAM, storage capacity of these models, but the HP Stream 11 Pro G4 EE (also part of this school line) has an HD screen. , 4GB of RAM and 64GB eMMC memory, works quite well in research.

All run Office 365 with OneNote and Teams. This will make writing, studying, and studying easier than ever.

Microsoft has partnered with many companies to provide digital tools to help students study and research. From its previous product such as the versatile Mixed Reality headset (300USD) to more expensive HoloLens, it has integrated a VR curriculum of Pearson - the world's largest education company.
