

Microsoft suddenly raised the price of Windows 10 Home version to 139 USD

Currently, users will have to spend higher amounts than before if they want to buy the copyrighted version of Windows 10 Home because Microsoft suddenly raised the price.

Currently, users will have to spend higher amounts than before if they want to buy the copyrighted version of Windows 10 Home because Microsoft suddenly raised the price. It is unclear when this price increase occurred, but according to reports, Microsoft quietly did this in early October.

Specifically, the previous selling price of Windows 10 Home is $ 119.99 (2.8 million VND) and after Microsoft quietly raised the price, the current price is 139 USD (3.27 million VND).

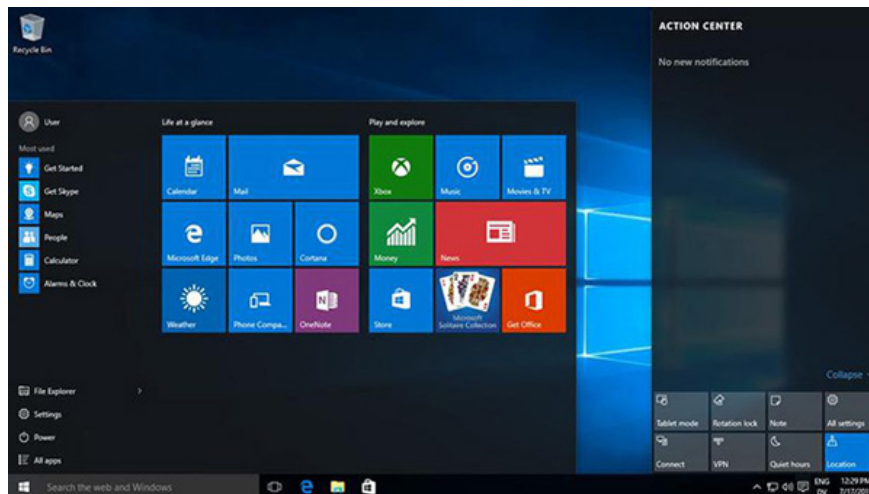

Photo: Microsoft.

MSPowerUser found this price increase information first on the Microsoft store at Microsoft.com. After downloading Windows 10 Home as a digital installation file, consumers found its price increased to $ 139.00. Currently on the Amazon website, the price of its digital version is also at this level. The physical USB installation version still has a retail price of US $ 119.99 but is in a state of "out of stock".

Windows 10 Home (Download)

★★★★★ 308

$139.00

Choose your product:

Download	USB - English
----------	---------------

Add to cart

It is likely that the new price will soon be applied to both digital and physical installation versions in the next few months.

Microsoft has only applied this price increase in the US and it is still unclear what effect this has on the retail price market in Vietnam.

See more:

1. Microsoft died of Windows 10 Creators Update version
2. Microsoft publicly released MS-DOS source code on GitHub
3. Microsoft recalls Windows 10 October 2018 Update to fix errors

You finished reading the article "Microsoft suddenly raised the price of Windows 10 Home version to 139 USD" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.