

Microsoft urges Windows users to upgrade to Internet Explorer 11 browser Microsoft has decided to create an opportunity for users to upgrade to IE11 when releasing an update of this operating system version via Windows Update.

Internet Explorer 10 browser - IE10 will be discontinued by Microsoft in 2020. At that time, users will not receive any relevant security or technical support.

Currently only IE 11 is receiving updates from Microsoft for a long time. Therefore, to ensure safety for Windows users, Microsoft decided to create an opportunity for users to upgrade to IE11 when releasing an update of this operating system version via Windows Update. For users of Windows Server 12 and Windows Embedded 8 Standard, IE11 updates will be released via Windows Server Update Services (WSUS) at the end of the year.

This move by Microsoft is intended to tell Windows users to upgrade to Internet Explorer 11 browser more securely.

Currently, most users who are using IE10 are businesses, who are vulnerable if they do not receive regular security updates.

See more:

1. What happens to a Microsoft official version of 'death'
2. Microsoft unveiled a new version of Windows 10 with improvements in RAW images and light themes
3. Microsoft Office is now officially available on the Mac App Store

You finished reading the article "Microsoft urges Windows users to upgrade to Internet Explorer 11 browser" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
