

Minecraft: A must-have in every survival base

Building the perfect survival base is one of the important jobs that all Minecraft players have to do. However, because it plays the role of ensuring the survival of the character, building a base is not easy.

Besides the basics, gamers also need to know about other advanced features to make life easier in the game. In this article, let's find out the important things that every survival base in Minecraft must have.

A must-have in every Minecraft survival base

Workstation

Workstation is probably the most important room that players need to create immediately. It's basically the room with all the crafting blocks, where to craft materials, repair tools, smelt ore,.

Workstation must be right next to the storage room so that the character can get resources quickly. In this room there should be a crafting table, several furnaces, a blast furnace, a smoker and an anvil. In addition, gamers can also buy a stone cutter, grinding stone, forging table, loom and other blocks that play a rather useful role.

Nether Gate

Towards the middle of the game, when the character needs to go to the Nether often, it's best for gamers to have a Nether Gate inside their base to cut down on travel time.

Furthermore, building another portal inside the Nether will also allow the character to travel between two different places in the Overworld, teleporting from one base to another.

To create a Nether portal in Minecraft, players need 10 obsidian blocks to build a 5x4 portal frame. Frame corners can use other materials. To ignite the portal, the player needs Flint and Steel or Fire Charge to light up one of the obsidian's bottom pieces. The inside of the portal frame will light up with purple light, which indicates that the gate is active.

Distillery area

The distillery area is the main center for potion making. Minecraft players should have at least one distillation rack, a cauldron filled with water, several empty bottles, and various ingredients to craft the finished product.

People can replace the cauldron with a flooded staircase. This is a special block that does not run out of water, allowing the potion to be brewed indefinitely.

Creating a Nether Wart garden near the distillery is quite an interesting and useful idea. Nether Wart is the most important ingredient in potions, so gamers need a lot to create potions.

Mineshaft

Having Mineshaft near the base will make mining faster and easier for the player in the long run. Using Mineshaft can obtain necessary crafting resources such as cobblestone, coal and iron ore. There are several ways to create Mineshaft, but the easiest method is to build a base near the cave system.

Trading area

Trading is one of the useful features of Minecraft for purchasing items. Collecting villagers, bringing them inside your base, and creating a real trading area is something players should definitely do. However, this process can be quite time consuming.

You finished reading the article "Minecraft: A must-have in every survival base" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.