

Minecraft: Quick tips to collect XP

Experience or XP is a useful resource in Minecraft. Players can obtain them by performing various activities, such as killing mobs, melting items, and mining.

Although it does not affect the character directly, it can be used to enhance equipment through enchanted tables or vaults. Gamers need a lot of XP to get a good set of enchanted equipment. In this article, let's learn 5 fastest ways to collect XP in Minecraft.

Collect mobs with Spawner

The simplest way to collect XP is to kill mobs. However, mobs in Minecraft only appear in small numbers and going around everywhere to find them is not very efficient. Therefore, if you want to get XP quickly and a lot, the best way is to find a Spawner.

Spawner (in Java Edition) or Monster Spawner (in Bedrock Edition), is a cage-like block that can spawn mobs. When configured, it contains a miniature, spinning version of the type of mob it spawns. In the early part of Minecraft, players could go to dungeons and mines to find Spawner.

1. Dungeon: A Spawner appears in the center of the dungeon, spawning a Zombie, Skeleton, or Spider.
2. Mines: A random number of Cave spider spawners, surrounded by dense cobwebs, scattered throughout.

The player can then collect automatically or simply kill the mobs when they spawn.

Exploit

If the character is fully equipped, start mining caves and everything. Especially coal, lapis, redstone, diamond or emerald, as they give XP directly. The player will also get XP for smelting iron ore and gold or any kind of cobblestone if desired.

However, the fastest type of mining only unlocks after the gamer has access to the Nether. Nether Quartz mining is probably the best way to earn exp, as it's the least risky with the biggest rewards. People can find Nether Quartz everywhere, as this ore is extremely common in the Nether, as it does not require a Y level.

Defeat Ender Dragon

If you have access to the End and are confident in your ability to defeat the Ender Dragon, you can kill it. For the first time, everyone will get 12,000 XP. The dragon can then be resurrected and killed for an additional 500 XP per kill. This may not seem like much, but most monsters will only give gamers about 10 XP or less. Wither is also a boss but only carries 50 XP.

Assuming that the player is currently level 0 and 12,000 EXP is enough to get over level 65. There are tricks to kill Ender Dragon without much investment, and if mastered, collecting EXP from this boss really feasibility.

Breeding and cooking

If you are a beginner, the fastest way to earn XP can be by raising, killing and cooking pigs, chickens (without using eggs), sheep or cows. Just take at least 2 of the same animals from the wild and start breeding until there is a large number. Then start killing some of them and make sure to keep spawning to replenish the killed numbers.

Breeding, killing animals and cooking them all give players a lot of experience. Everyone will get extra XP if they burn coal to use in their furnaces.

Going out at night

Mobs spawn when it's dark, so it's easier to collect mobs at night. When it's nighttime, put on your best gear and head out. Try to stay high where you can look down and kill mobs. It will make the Skeleton harder to hit the character and the Creeper will not explode.

You finished reading the article "Minecraft: Quick tips to collect XP" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

