

Missing the flight instead of being angry, the girl shot the video dancing through the night at the airport

A woman was stranded overnight at North Carolina airport and she killed time by asking airport staff to return to her dance videos.

1. Strangely, the catfish from the sky to the pool is still alive
2. Strangely the road disappears twice a day on the Atlantic coast
3. Strangely: The beaver becomes the "leader", leading 150 cows

A woman was stranded overnight at North Carolina airport and she killed time by asking airport staff to return to her dance videos.

Mahshid Mazooji said she was stuck overnight at Charlotte Douglas International Airport when she missed a transitional flight, after which she decided to stay overnight at the airport center.

Taking this opportunity, she took the time to film a dance movie similar to Lionel Richie's "All Night Long" in 1983.

Her dance video was posted on YouTube showing that there were many border guards, security guards, visitors, and colleagues participating in this improvised dance dance.

"I missed the flight in Charlotte, and I didn't want to just sit there and get angry and sad all night, so instead I did what I was happiest . that's dancing! Oh , I did it with some really great friends , thank you for dancing with me !!! :) " - Mazooji shared in the video description.

You finished reading the article "Missing the flight instead of being angry, the girl shot the video dancing through the night at the airport" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.