

Mozilla is about to launch non-advertising web services, with an initial fee of $ 5 / month

Mozilla will partner with Scroll, to help collect monthly fees from users and remove ads on collaborative websites.

Currently, many users are using ad blocking programs, which reduces the revenue of websites. This makes the online content providers unhappy and has made several times to ask viewers to pay fees to maintain the site.

Mozilla, the company behind the famous Firefox browser, is developing a paid Internet service to help users not be bothered by ads and not be charged by websites. The goal of Mozilla is to help both users and online content providers work together.

Mozilla will partner with Scroll, to help collect monthly fees from users and remove ads on collaborative websites. Maybe you don't know, Scroll is a company specializing in providing web surfing services that does not advertise on famous websites like TheVerge, BuzzFeed, Gizmodo . As expected, the initial fee is 5 USD / month.

moz://a

Support the sites you love, avoid the ads you hate

We've partnered with some of the world's greatest publishers to bring you a better journalism experience. We share your payment directly with the sites you read. They make more money which means they can bring you great content without needing to distract you with ads just to keep the lights on.

Sign up now! $4.99 per month

Mozilla confirms that the money collected from users will be transferred back to websites so that they can earn more income and encourage them to make more efforts to bring viewers a better journalistic experience.

You can visit the Mozilla homepage to find out more information and sign up for the trial program here.

1. Mozilla launches a new browser called Firefox Preview, fast browsing speed and smooth running
2. To use the 'clean' Internet, users will have to pay 35 USD / month, are you ready?

You finished reading the article "Mozilla is about to launch non-advertising web services, with an initial fee of $ 5 / month" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
