

Mysterious sea creatures do not have eyes, mouth washes on American beaches

A mysterious sea creature without eyes and mouth made the Internet community confused when it was washed away by the waves at the beach of Leo Carrillo in Malibu, California, USA.

A mysterious sea creature without eyes and mouth made the Internet community confused when it was washed away by the waves at the beach of Leo Carrillo in Malibu, California, USA.

This creature does not seem to have outstanding features, such as the eyes or mouth, but there are two giant tumors that stick to the end of the body.

According to an article on the Daily Mail, a passerby found this strange creature at the beach and shared its images on the Internet to see if anyone realized what animal it was.

The witness claimed that this creature weighs about 3.2 kg and is 13 cm wide.

According to the report, an Internet user suggested that this odd sea creature is a marine rabbit in California, which is a popular sea slug in the US West Coast. These slugs specialize in eating red algae from the sea floor, and turn into red.

This is not the first time a strange sea creature has drifted to the beach in America.

Earlier this year, a fisherman named Asrul Tuanakota discovered a rotting, mysterious corpse on an Indonesian beach that many people panicked with a frightening, scary look.

You finished reading the article "Mysterious sea creatures do not have eyes, mouth washes on American beaches" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

---