

NCOVI application supporting universal health declaration is officially available on iOS

The NCOVI application supporting the Covid-19 translation room for the entire population has officially been available for iOS.

According to information of ICTNews, NCOVI application on universal health declaration has officially been available on iOS operating system since the evening of 11/3. Thus, the entire population can download and use this health declaration application on both iOS and Android operating systems.

NCOVI is one of the two applications developed by the Ministry of Information and Communications and the Ministry of Health and major domestic technology companies with the goal of allowing people to declare health information and gain quick access to information on Covid disease - 19.

The NCOVI application is officially available on the App Store. Photo: TL

The application officially launched on 9/3 after a period of construction urgently. Until the evening of 11/3, NCOVI has been officially approved by Apple to the App Store.

The Ministry of Information and Communications and the Ministry of Health recommend that the whole population use this application to provide information to support the health sector to find out cases to pay attention to ensure the most active prevention and control of epidemic.

After downloading the NCOVI application at: <https://apps.apple.com/vn/app/ncovi/id1501934178>, people can follow these 2 steps: declaring personal and family information (full name , identification, nationality, gender, contact information .). After that, the user will conduct a disease survey, the user self-assess the health status and fill out the survey form, then send in the declaration information to complete.

An important function of the NCOVI application is to declare risk factors. Persons traveling from an infected area, who have been in contact with an infected or suspected person, need to declare risk factors for timely assistance from health authorities. All of this information will be kept confidential and strictly managed, used only for the purpose of supporting the community.

According to the information, the system can meet the large load, about 30 million people will use and install. The ability to upgrade, expand and maintain fast, data is updated and synchronized in real time, the mechanism of user login and authentication, support for subscribers of other carriers, and compatible with multiple operating systems. and popular smartphones on the market, ensuring personal information security and preventing network attacks.

Link to download NCOVI application on iOS

<https://apps.apple.com/en/app/ncovi/id1501934178>

You finished reading the article "NCOVI application supporting universal health declaration is officially available on iOS" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.