Netbook dominated the list of best-selling computer devices on Amazon.com during Cyber Monday 2008 (Monday immediately after Thanksgiving), the unofficial opening day of the busiest shopping season of the year.

Netbooks are the term for mini-sized laptops, with screens ranging from 7-10 inches. Compared to regular laptops, they are only half as small and much lighter, usually under 1.5 kg.

The cost of netbooks is also often cheaper. But users can still surf the Net wirelessly, while working easily with the standard keyboard.

Therefore, netbooks accounted for 7 out of 10 best-selling products in Amazon.com's " Computer & computer hardware " list on December 1.

The other three locations belong to Samsung's high-resolution LCD monitor and Apple's MacBook line.

Asus' EEE PC 900HA netbook model took the top spot thanks to its 8.9-inch screen, Intel Atom processor and Windows XP operating system installation.

Although there are also a few EEE usures, but by the end of the day, Acer's Aspire One has to stand still in the runner-up position.

Coming in third place is Aspire One, sapphire blue version.

Ranked fifth on the list is the XO laptop of a Laptop Per Child project.

In the framework of the OLPC collaboration with Amazon.com, users will have the opportunity to buy an XO laptop if they "donate" another to OLPC for humanitarian purposes.

Samples of Samsung NC-10 netbook with 10.2-inch screen and white casing ranked No. 7. Also this model but wearing "blue" in ranked 9th.

The Samsung name has been added twice on Amazon's list.

The 20-inch LCD touch screen Touch of Color T200 is in fourth place, while the Touch of Color T260, 26 inches in size, stands at number 6.

MacBook MB466LL / A of Apple, a laptop with a 13.3-inch screen ranked at number 8.

The two latest designs of the MacBook line, the MacBook Air and MacBook Touch Pro, are absent in the Top, partly because of their high price.

Completing the Top 10 is the Wind netbook from Micro-Star International, a device equipped with a 10-inch screen, 6-core battery and a black cover.
