

New YouTube features help you get complete information about the songs in the video you are watching

Recently, YouTube released a new sunshine called 'Music in this video' - 'Music in this video', which provides information about the music included in the video you are watching.

Recently, YouTube released a new sunshine called ' Music in this video ' - ' Music in this video ', which provides information about the music included in the video you are watching.

Such information includes the name of the song, musician, singer, producer, publisher and their official YouTube channel link if available. This makes it easier for users to search for music and information while ensuring the rights of artists who own the song.

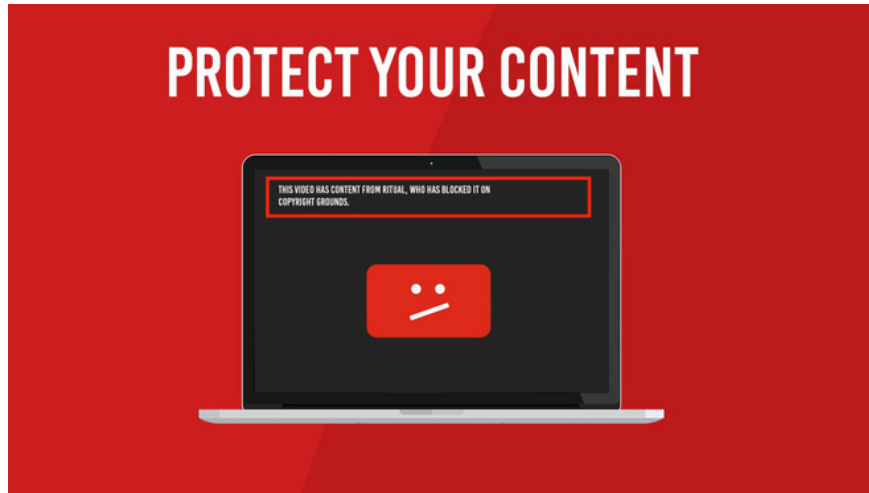

New YouTube features provide more information about music tracks used in videos .

The new 'Music in this video' feature appears in the caption just below the video, to see information about music tracks, simply click 'Show more'.

But, now this feature seems to work only with videos that use a full track, which may not be applicable to cut, remix or incomplete tracks. Even due to limitations in YouTube's database, some videos, even using a single track, are not supported. Hopefully in the future this feature will be upgraded to improve the situation.

PROTECT YOUR CONTENT

"Music in this video" is considered an expanded version of Content ID system - a system that allows users to monitor and manage the content they produce, being used by YouTube to limit the infringement. license. Content ID allows users to decide what to do with videos using their content.

YouTube said that this feature has been applied to about 500 million videos and will continue to expand in the near future.

See more:

1. Quick, accurate video search tips on YouTube
2. The mobile YouTube application is about to be incognito
3. 8 apps to help you watch YouTube videos in Chrome floating window
4. Which criteria do YouTube calculate Top Trending?

You finished reading the article "New YouTube features help you get complete information about the songs in the video you are watching" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.