Tesco revealed the Dell Inspiron Z530

However, according to experts, if you look at the Inspiron Z530 as a product of Dell's "compact and low-cost design", it is also unreasonable because the laptop uses a 12-inch screen. This size is bigger than PC Mini and cheap. Strictly speaking, the Z530 has been classified as a laptop, not a Netbook.

Dell has not announced pricing and product information

But noteworthy Tesco also revealed the full image of the Dell Inspiron Z530. It is expected that this product will be sold on the market from 6-10 days here.
