

Often heartburn can be a sign of stomach cancer

Stomach cancer is often diagnosed at an advanced stage, because symptoms rarely appear at first, but regular heartburn can be a sign of cancer, also known as stomach cancer.

Stomach cancer is often diagnosed at an advanced stage, because symptoms rarely appear at first, but regular heartburn can be a sign of cancer, also known as stomach cancer.

According to Express.co.uk, stomach cancer is often diagnosed at an advanced stage, because symptoms can rarely be identified from the start.

Other symptoms that need attention include abdominal pain or tightness in the chest, after eating a small amount of food and a burning sensation when swallowing.

Finding blood in your stool, constant indigestion and a feeling of difficulty breathing is also a sign of this condition.

Men, smokers and Asians, South Africans or Beloreans tend to develop this disease and are more common in people over 75 years of age.

Eating more frozen foods, more chemicals and salty meat also increases your risk as well as alcohol abuse and not exercise.

Cancer can start in any part of the stomach, but the treatment can recover depending on where the tumor resides, and how it develops.

The main treatments include chemotherapy, and surgery .

Smaller tumors can be treated with surgery, while larger tumors may need a combination of some more advanced, more complex treatments.

You finished reading the article "Often heartburn can be a sign of stomach cancer" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.