South America. No longer are white people with low backgrounds, always trying to get out of poverty but increasingly sinking deeper into the criminal path, Lincoln's journey into the dark world is mostly voluntarily because he was eager to take revenge and was raised as a child in a family that was the leader of the African gangster.

The discharged veteran and the new job

Lincoln Clay was born in January 1945 but only two years later this child was abandoned by his mother at the orphanage of Saint Michelle located in French Ward, New Bordeaux. By 1958, the orphanage had no funds to maintain, so it was forced to close but Lincoln's fate was relatively lucky when Sammy and Perla Robinson were adopted. Although they were just adopted, the Robinson family's feelings for Lincoln were no different from their own, sometimes they even made their biological Ellis feel jealous because their adopted brother was loved more. While still trying to find information about his biological parents, Lincoln was of military service age so he was forced to enlist in 1964.

In the first army he served at the 223rd Infantry Regiment before being transferred to Special Forces No. 5 with the rank of sergeant. In April 1966, Lincoln took on a secret mission and befriended CIA agent John Donovan, who would later assist him in rebuilding Black Mob and defeating the Marcano family. Lincoln's military service is not a lot of fun, but it is certainly helpful to provide a lot of knowledge in the proficiency in using guns and explosives. The process of serving at Special Forces No. 5 also helped him become an expert in the field of stealth action or when collaborating with the CIA he was instructed how to properly apply all beneficial elements such as spanking, preemptive psychology for example, enemies.

After 4 years in the army, Lincoln discharged from the army returned to New Bordeaux with the dream of departing to California in search of fortune in his career. Unfortunately, the dream was unsuccessful because Sammy Robinson, the leader of an African gang, was having trouble with members of Haitian society because of a dispute over a business area. Seeing his foster father, Lincoln decided to help out by taking on a mission to Bayou Fantom to butcher Baka, the leader of the Haitian traveling group. Despite destroying Baka, things are still very confusing because during the unfavorable business time Sammy Robinson borrowed a large amount from Sal Marcano to maintain Black Mob state. Sal is an Italian-born sinister mafia that often connects with criminal groups in New Bordeaux. Due to extensive relations, he has a lot of voice and a face in the underworld here but Lincoln doesn't like this person.

6 things every game needs to know before experiencing Mafia III

Mafia III is expected to be a promising open-world action game, let's take a look at some of the highlights in this super product!

In return for Sal's borrowed debt, Sammy agreed to help carry out the robbery at the Federal Reserve branch in New Bordeaux. However, Sam is old so he will send his two children to look for Sal at the country club to discuss more about this plan. At the meeting, Sal was impressed with the way Lincoln solved the Haitian tycoon so the mafia suggested that he replace Sammy to become the new leader of Black Mob and manage the Delray Hollow area. As a sentimental person, of course Lincoln could not accept such an offer. However, he still agreed to support the robbery along with any requests from Sal. On the day of the plan, while Lincoln and Giorgi disguised themselves as transportation personnel to infiltrate the main building, Ellis and Danny took care of their work under the sewer to make a way out.

The robbery was successful but so happy and sad

The plan was to use a drill, provided by Danny's father, to make a big hole in the silver cellar and then the two people in the capital had scooped up all the gold in the vault and moved it down. In order to escape, they parked a canoe in the sewer to escape the intermittent rivers of the southern United States, at which point the sky was high and wide. The first phase is relatively convenient when Lincoln and Giorgi do not have many difficulties to penetrate into the vault, but it is more difficult to get out when they are discovered and have to fight fiercely with the people. security guards. Eventually, thanks to the installation of the bomb to collapse the holy vault, the group got out of the Federal Reserve's silver vault with Lincoln's performance of canoeing down the drain. Returning to the base of Black Mob, Lincoln excitedly showed off his trophy to his old man, with the money robbed up to 6 million dollars.

With a share of approximately 2 million, the Robinson family could not only pay off debt to Sal Marcano but also have enough money to live a comfortable life for the rest of their life. As they danced to celebrate the rich future ahead, Sal Marcano, Giorgi and Ritchie Doucet showed up at Robinson's house to take the share. Sammy was very happy because the mission was successful, so she invited a bunch of Italian mafia of Italian origin. While talking excitedly, Giorgi suddenly pulled a gun to shoot Lincoln in the head and then dealt with Daniel Burke. While stunned by the wound on his head, Lincoln saw Ritchie Doucet with a knife stabbing Ellis repeatedly and Sal Marcano shot Sammy nearly a dozen shots. Before hugging all the money to leave, Giorgi also set a fire to burn down the Robinson bar. When he was about to collapse, the images that Lincoln saw were the illusion of Sammy leaving with a sad face while the parish priest, James, braved the danger of rushing into the burning house to save him.

Before he completely lost consciousness, the veteran still tried to ask his father James to call his close friend John Donovan to help. The injury was so severe that Lincoln had to rest for a long time before he could regain consciousness and walk normally. When recovering the first thing Lincoln thought about was finding Sal Marcano for revenge. Father James has no idea what that is, but advises Lincoln that Sal is an asshole so it's okay to kill him, but after the grace of revenge, let everything pass instead do not wallow in hatred for violence. The force continues to escalate in New Bordeaux. Lincoln did not accept that because what he wanted was not simply Sal's life, but the veteran also wanted to rebuild the African board, the passion of his foster father. Of course under the total domination of the Marcano family, want to do that will certainly not lack of conflicts in the city located in the southern US Gulf.

Father James only wanted to be good for Lincoln, but the hatred contained so much in his heart that he became much more cruel than before. Because for Sal Marcano to feel the anguish when the empire built by itself was destroyed little by little, Lincoln would not hesitate to mess with New Bordeaux with bloody purges. Disagreeing views caused the two to disband in an awkward atmosphere, Father James taught everyone to try to be kind to each other and live in peace. But from his experience during the service on the battlefield, the period of cooperation with the CIA and most importantly the terrible tragedy that happened a few months ago, Lincoln Clay now persists with the determination strong will be able to live in peace because then nobody will dare to provoke him. Maintaining proper respect for the person who saves his life, Lincoln and Donovan said goodbye to the parish priest and returned to Black Mob's old base to collect some necessary personal items as well as a plan to turn down Sal Marcano.
