

Revealing the design of the iPhone 16 series, the Pro version will have 2 new color options

Leaked information shows that the camera system of the iPhone 16 and iPhone 16 Plus will be more compactly designed, similar to the iPhone X generation. The iPhone 16 Pro line will have two new color options: Rose and Space. Black.

MacRumors page has just posted images of the back cases of the iPhone 16 and iPhone 16 Plus duo. This image shows two next-generation standard iPhone models that will get a design refresh.

Specifically, the main camera system of the device will be made more compact with two vertical lenses, similar to the iPhone X. Meanwhile, the LED flash will be placed outside the camera cluster. This change makes the overall back design more minimalist and more harmonious than recent iPhone generations.

This is a small change but will contribute to increasing the recognition ability of new generation iPhone devices. Apple often uses these details to create design highlights for users.

Many previously leaked sources said that the iPhone 16 product line will have a built-in Capture Button. According to MacRumors, the new key will have different responses through pressing or touch operations.

Users can zoom in and out of the image by swiping this key left or right. Besides, pressing lightly once will help the camera focus and record video when pressed harder. The two standard versions of iPhone 16 and iPhone 16 Plus will also be upgraded to 8GB RAM capacity, equivalent to the Pro and Pro Max duo. This is considered an important improvement, promising to improve the multitasking performance of the device. According to leaked information, this version is expected to have more vivid color options, like Apple's tradition.

In addition, information that the iPhone 16 Pro will have two new colors was revealed on a Weibo account and then widely shared on media platforms. The first new color option mentioned is Rose, a metallic bronze tone, a unique combination of luxury and modernity, similar to the Rose Gold color that appeared on the iPhone 8.

The introduction of this new color could lead to the removal of the Blue Titanium color, similar to the Deep Purple color disappearing on the iPhone 14 Pro when the new generation was introduced. More specifically, the Space Black color will also return, bringing style and modernity, especially suitable for those who own the new MacBook Pro M3 Pro.

A source also said that the white color option will be similar to the silver color on the iPhone 14 Pro, unlike the White Titanium color from the iPhone 15 Pro series. The Gray color on the iPhone 16 Pro is expected to be a new version of the Natural Titanium color, with a darker color than the previous generation.

Additionally, other rumors related to the iPhone 16 series, such as the addition of a camera button and a newly improved Pro processor for AI, are also widely circulating. Notably, iPhone 16 Pro and iPhone 16 Pro Max are expected to have larger screens, 6.3 and 6.9 inches respectively.

You finished reading the article "Revealing the design of the iPhone 16 series, the Pro version will have 2 new color options" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.