

Update Roboto Condensed font to continue viewing the page

But on another hacked page, the page still displays normal text.

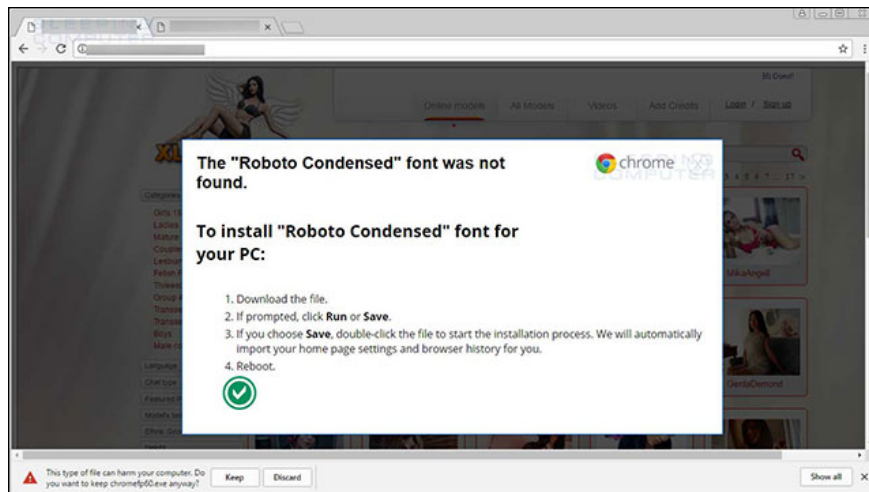

The text displayed normally on the page has been hacked

If you use Chrome, the font download will be called Chrome Font Pack. If using Mozilla, it will be named Mozilla Font Pack.

Font download notification on Firefox Mozilla

Once you click Update, the script will download the file called chrome60.exe if you use Chrome or mozilla60.exe if you use Firefox. At that time, the alert will turn into a save guide and install the downloaded file.

Instructions for executing, installing downloaded files

However, the good news is that the download is not automatic, but the victim must install it manually to be infected. The attacker hopes that by making text distortions and pseudo-warnings from the browser about missing fonts, they can trick users into running the file. Once the file is executed, the malware will be installed on the computer.

Font Roboto Condensed installing Ursnif malicious code, digging and downloading Trojans

According to MalwareBreakDown, the attacker behind Roboto Condensed Font Pack always rotates using different types of malware. Currently, these malware include digging tools for Monero mines, Trojan.Downloaders and Ursnif computer activity tracking malware. Although no good but most dangerous malware is Ursnif.

Ursnif silently runs in the background, while recording whatever you type on the keyboard, what web page you visit or if you copy any text to the clipboard. This can cause sensitive information about commercial transactions, user names - passwords, financial information .

Because an attacker who constantly changes malware types will install them on the user's computer, it will not be surprising if we see extortion in the future.
