About a month ago, Rovio revealed that they are collaborating with Hasbro to produce a special version of Angry Bird Transformers called Angry Birds Transformers, eating the hit Transformers series.

To let everyone know more about this version, Rovio introduced the game through a new trailer at the ongoing Comic-Con event in San Diego, California .

The video does not have any actual footage on the game but also gives us some suggestions about this version with taking Transformers as a center. Although it is not known which game to play, the interesting thing is that the birds will cooperate with the pigs to destroy the target. In previous versions, both were always enemies of each other.
