According to information we have just received, Samsung will release a new wireless (true wireless) headset right in the Galaxy S10 launch event.

This new product will most likely be called 'Galaxy Earbuds', and the first images have been posted by WinFuture, showing an eye-catching model with a modern, youthful design, placed on the back. of the Galaxy S10, implicitly describing how the wireless charging function works between the two products.

1. Samsung Galaxy S10 will be one of the first Wi-Fi 6 smartphones in the world

Not only that, SamMobile also stated that Galaxy S10 can fully charge wireless devices other than Galaxy Earbuds via the feature called 'Power Share'.Essentially, this feature is similar to the reverse wireless charging technology that we have seen on Huawei Mate 20.

Going back to Galaxy Earbuds, as of now, there is not much information about this new headset, but the device has been approved by the US Federal Communications Commission (FCC) - all devices Being sent and receiving signals that want to appear in the US market will require FCC approval.This tells us that Galaxy Earbuds will support Bluetooth technology, as well as Samsung's Bixby virtual assistant.It is almost certain that this product will be launched by Samsung this year, and will most likely become a Korean manufacturer's strategic product to compete directly with Apple's rival AirPods.

1. Samsung will launch a 1TB memory chip for smartphones, will it appear on Galaxy S10?

Besides wireless earbuds, there are rumors that Samsung will announce a more advanced version of the S10 that comes with a ceramic back cover along with black or white. There will be a lot of attention in the series of new product launches of the giant Kim Chi at the end of this month, let's wait and see!
