Deception is one of the biggest causes of breakdown and breakup.

According to the New York Times writer, who is also a " love strategist," Matthew Hussey said that deception is " anything beyond the limits of two insiders ".

Matthew Hussey also added: " There is no definition that accurately reflects the deception. It may be like this to one person, but another thing in the other's eyes. In an open, deceitful relationship. happens when either party gets into bed with a third person and doesn't tell the other person '.

And it's bad that this is becoming more and more popular in the modern context.

A survey conducted in the UK in 2015 found an amazing result that as many as 1 in 5 adults in love relationships admitted they had thought about adultery . A quarter of these people " fish with two hands "; The remaining 20% love 3 to 4 people at a time and 8% love more than 5 people in the same period.

So how can you identify the most easily adulterated people? Please consult Matthew Hussey on the signs of recognizing the 3 types of people who are most easily adulterated below!

1. The person who loves only himself

" People who only love themselves often care about how lovely they are in the eyes of others. They never feel satisfied if only one person is wholeheartedly devoted to them. They always wish thirst for the love of many people, so they cannot resist the attraction of any romantic, inviting, or mesmerizing eyes, "said Matthew Hussey.

In addition, a study shows that people who ' love only themselves ' often avoid admitting that they already have lovers to be able to approach other potential objects more easily.

2. People are always afraid of being hurt

Matthew Hussey said: " If you love a person who often feels insecure, be careful. I am not talking about the fears that I see every day, because all of us have. What I am talking about is. fear of a person who suffers when he or she is afraid you don't love them anymore, because they are afraid of losing love, so they search, cling to it in others. .

" We need to be honest in any relationship. If the enemy is still with you but not because of love, deception is inevitable. If they behave coldly to you, far away from you. For a long time, no one can predict where the future of the two will go, however, it will be dangerous when they are skeptical even for a moment, whether you really love them or not. " .

3. Selfish people

" People who live because they will be lazy to pay attention to moral values ??in love. They know how much you will be disgusted or hurt if you know that you are betrayed but they still choose silver. Such people often have a sense of moral injustice about morality or hypocritical hypocrites no less or less, 'said Matthew Hussey.
