

Speed ??up Windows 10 by turning off unnecessary background apps

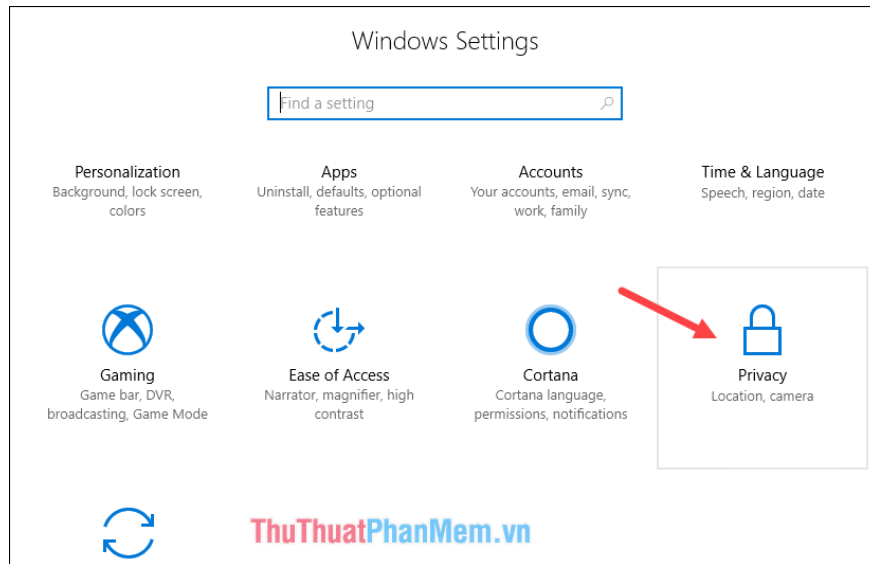

Windows 10 has quite a lot of apps running in the background, with ordinary users, they will not use them. TipsMake.vn will guide you another trick to speed up the computer running Windows 10 that is to turn off the application running in the background.

Surely all of us who use computers also want their computers to operate as fast and smooth as possible. However, to achieve that we need to know how to take care of and use our computer properly. We have quite a few tricks to speed up your computer such as: clean junk files regularly, remove viruses, shut down programs that start with windows.vv. And in this article, Thuthuatphanmem.vn will guide guide you another trick to speed up a computer running windows 10 that is to turn off the application running in the background. Invite you to refer.

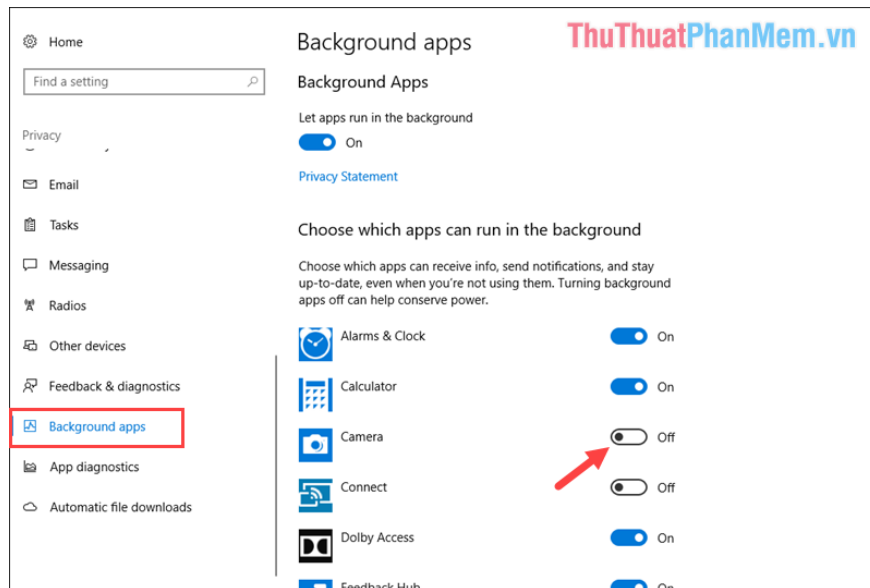

Step 1: Open the Start menu, select the Setting item .

Step 2 : In the Settings window, select Privacy .

Step 3 : You select the Background apps section , and you will see applications running in the background . You want to turn off the background application, just press the button from On to Off at that application is.

Also, if you want to turn off all applications that run in the background , just turn off Let apps run in the background without having to turn off each application.

So with just a few simple steps, we have turned off the applications that run in the background in Windows 10, this will help your computer to operate a little faster. Hope you will find the article useful. Good luck.

You finished reading the article "Speed ??up Windows 10 by turning off unnecessary background apps" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.