

Technology applications are only in nostalgia for the 8x, 9x generations

The time when there were no smartphones, no Internet ... but there were still technological items associated with the memory of a generation.

The past is beautiful memories that nurture our souls growing year by year. There are things in the past that we never forget, it is an integral part of the maturity of a human being. And for many of the early 8x and 9x generations, the technology world has experienced rapid developments over the years, to the extent that technology items of that time were once considered 'top notch'. technology 'but now it's just nostalgia.

Let's join us once again to experience that childlike feeling. If you remember, you must have had a great childhood.

1. Floppy disks

This is the first type of data storage disk. When new computers began to appear in Vietnam. These square discs have capacities between 720 KB and 2.88 MB to store data. This number is indeed too small for everyone's current needs. But then, these floppy disks were the only thing to help users store Word files or operating system versions to boot on the DOS platform. These discs are actually the most important technological item in the 90s of the last century.

2. Ball mouse

Today, referring to ball mice is probably very few young people know about it, because we are so familiar with the type of optical mouse, laser mouse to the level called the mouse, they are the same. But for people in the 8x generation may never forget this type of mouse, the type of mouse at the time used a large marble at the bottom, which is the most important thing of the mouse to be able to record movements. of the user and pass it on to the computer. So when the operation is no longer smooth, we often open the lid to clean the roller and then enjoy the smooth feeling as when we just bought the mouse.

3. Download a song

For us today, downloading or listening to a song directly on the web is probably too easy. But for the first generation when using technology, downloading music is probably a very difficult task. Every time you download, you have to wait for hours to download a song online, while praying for the network to not be "off the road" when it is almost finished.

4. A shared phone line for many phones in the house

In the era of new technology development, a family has 2-3 phones, but only 1 line used this sometimes inconvenient for many people. Because when one person hears the phone, another person in your family can hear this conversation.

5. Take a picture without knowing what the result will be

When film cameras were popular, we had to shoot without knowing how our photos would become. And the most thrilling moment is to bring the film to the photo wash to print.

6. Check your email daily and be happy when you receive an email from a friend

The time when email was still something strange, we were often happy to receive an email from relatives and strangers.

7. Black and white TV

Perhaps this is the most valuable technological item in the 1990s. At that time, those families with very good conditions could afford this black-and-white TV, because these TVs were worth about 5-7 gold (according to the current exchange rate, it is about 16-23 million VND). The whole world recovers with a TV, with families with a TV that is probably the busiest place in the village because by night the whole village will gather together to watch the programs that are playing in front of the black screen. white. This is probably a beautiful memory that you will never forget.

8. Video tape head

Referring to old TVs without mentioning video tapes is a major shortcoming. Just like the TVs of the time, the video tapes were of great value (some gold only) so not all houses have the conditions to shop. Accompanying these videotapes are of course quite large videos used to store movies, music . and those that rent tapes at that time are always expensive.

9. Tamagotchi - Virtual chicken

This is a well-known gaming machine for many generations of students. These gaming machines appeared in Vietnam and actually grew widely for many people in 2002-2006, "pretty little" machines that allowed players to raise an animal in it, taking care of it's everyday and looks at them mature.

10. Handheld game machine E.999

This is a gaming machine that is probably well known. In this game machine known for classic games that are puzzle, racing, just a lot of games are enough for girls, the boy loves to play all day and night. Perhaps many people still remember the memory of hiding their parents playing this machine every nap, then crying and begging when confiscated and banned from playing.

The above is just one of the many technological items we offer. If you have more tech items, please comment at the end of the post to share!

Having fun!

You finished reading the article "Technology applications are only in nostalgia for the 8x, 9x generations" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.